HEAT WAVE OVER BRITAIN

Temperature Lower Yesterday

London, Aug. 30.
The heat-wave over Britain moderated to some extent to-day.
Although fine weather continued throughout Britain there was a considerable drop of temperature, which yesterday reached 90 degrees in places.—British Wireless.

RACING CAR MIRACLE

DRIVER UNHURT

A remarkable motoring accident occurred during a practice run for Saturday's Ulster Tourist Trophy race on the Ards circuit near Belfast to-day.

A small car, driven by Lieutenant Balmain, skidded violently when travelling at over seventy miles an hour and performed an amazing series of evolutions, turning four somersaults, finally landing upright on its wheels only 30 yards from where the skid began.

Lieut. Balmain was pinned in the driving seat and escaped unhurt, but his mechanic, named Dunkley, was thrown out of the car and killed.—British Wireless.

THREE CHOIRS FESTIVAL

TO BE HELD IN HEREFORD

London, Aug. 30.
The Three Choirs festival, one of the oldest and most notable musical events in Britain, which is held in turn each year in the Cathedral of either Gloucester, Worcester or Hereford, will begin its 213th meeting in Hereford Cathedral on Sunday.

Sir Edward Elgar will conduct two of his Oratorios "Gerontius" and "The Kingdom" and among British composers contributing new works are Doctor Dyson and Mr. Martin Shaw.—British Wireless.

MRS. WILLS-MOODY'S FUTURE

No Intention of Giving Up Tennis

San Francisco, Aug. 30.

Mrs. Wills-Moody, who has arrived here from Forest Hills, announced that she has no intention of giving up competitive tennis.

Helen hopes to be able to compete in the National Singles championship in 1934.

She declared that she did not regret her action in defaulting to Miss Jacobs. She would have expected Miss Jacobs to do likewise had the position been reversed.

Mrs. Wills-Moody intends to rest for at least six months. She was sure she would be better after it.—Reuter.

Notice has been given of the immediate marriage of Mr. George and Miss Mary, which will take place on the 1st of September.

SERIOUS RAVAGES DISCOVERED

DANGEROUSLY DAMAGED TIMBERS

A PUBLIC APPEAL LAUNCHED

TIMBERS IN THE ROOF OF ST. JOHN'S CATHEDRAL HAVE BEEN DANGEROUSLY DAMAGED BY THE RAVAGES OF WHITE ANTS, REVEALS A HIGHLY INTERESTING REPORT BY THE ARCHITECT WHO IS NOW ENGAGED IN AN INTENSIVE CAMPAIGN AGAINST THE PESTS.

The extensive repairs and renewals which are absolutely essential will cost the Trustees at least five thousand dollars. It is pointed out that unless generous and immediate support is forthcoming, the Cathedral will be in a very serious position. A public appeal for funds has, therefore, been launched to-day.

COMPOUND NOW A BATTLEGROUND

During the heavy rains of July a number of leaks appeared in the roof of the Cathedral, and architects tracing these leaks found that the beams and rafters had been dangerously weakened by the ravages of white ants.

A complete survey of all woodwork and the erection of scaffolding was immediately commenced, and has just been completed.

As a result of the examination it has been proved that heavy

Wood, Mr. F. G. Maunders, Mr. T. H. King and Mr. W. C. Clark) $175,000; The Hon. Mr. P. Lauder, $100,000.

HIGHLY INTERESTING REPORT.

The highly interesting report of the Architect, Mr. Iglesden, on the search for and battle against the white ants at the Cathedral, follows:—

The presence of live white ants in the Cathedral was discovered some time last month during the inspection for leaks which appeared following the heavy rains.

The tracks of these pests were first found over the Clergy vestry, where close to some discoloured plaster a line similar to an electric cable was seen over a roof beam.

On close investigation this was found to be a white ant track—a little tunnel formed of the material upon which the ant is working, black in its black soil, light red-brown in lime mortar.

In this case a darker brown being composed of little particles of chewed up hard wood.

A hasty search was immediately made and further tracks could be discerned on the roof timbers over the chancel and the North Transept.

TILE MOVEMENT.

The inspection of the roof from the outside showed normal conditions except that in one place the roll tiles or the circular high ridges had definitely slid a fraction of an inch over the pan tiles or concave ones. This indicated some form of settlement underneath and was the first definite reason for a closer inspection.

For this purpose a bamboo tower was constructed and pulled up into position under the affected parts.

From this the suspected timbers could be tested, and it was found that some of the brackets and purlins were dangerously damaged, so without more ado permission was obtained to inspect the whole of the roof.

DANGEROUSLY DAMAGED.

The cobweb like bamboo structure that now covers the internal roof is of course to permit access to every place of timber in the Cathedral. Directly under the position of the shear or slide in the tiles was found a badly damaged batten. These battens would at home be called common rafters, but as they in this case directly support the tiles they are literally tile battens.

The inspection showed that three principal timbers would have to be replaced, namely, many of the batten timbers, many of the purlins and many of the brackets.

Donations should be sent either to the South China Morning Post Limited, or to Mr. A. Brearley, of the Chartered Bank. Cheques should be made out to St. John's Cathedral Restoration Fund and crossed.

Donations already received for the Restoration Fund, including the sum of $1,000, are as follows:—

LAST EIGHT IN U.S. GOLF

MISS ENID WILSON THROUGH

ALMOST CERTAIN SEMI-FINALIST

New York, Aug. 30.

Miss Enid Wilson won her second round match in the American Women's open golf championship with comfortable ease, finishing four up on the 36-hole green.

The American favorites, Miss Helen Hicks, Miss Orcutt, and Miss van Wic also passed in to the third round.

The quarter-finals are to be played to-morrow, but Miss Wilson will not come into collision with her chief rivals until the following day.

Miss Wilson is making a last bid to capture the American title. She has won the British title on several occasions and intended to retire after winning it again this year. She could not, however, resist a further attack on the American championship.

The complete results to-day were:—

Miss Wilson beat Miss Higbie 4 and 3.
Miss Robinson beat Miss Maddox 5 and 4.

Miss Helen Hicks beat Mrs. Fitzhugh 4 and 3.
Miss Glutting beat Miss Wattles 3 and 2.

Miss van Wic beat Mrs. Federman 4 and 2.
Mrs. Cheney beat Miss Angorczyk 4 and 3.

Mrs. Hill beat Miss Frances Williams 4 and 3.
Miss Orcutt beat Mrs. Newbold 4 and 2.

Miss Wilson meets Miss Glutting in the quarter-finals to-morrow.—Reuter.

NORMAN DAVIS ON WAY TO EUROPE

AMERICA'S ROVING AMBASSADOR

MESSAGE FROM PRESIDENT

New York, Aug. 30.

Verbal messages from President Roosevelt to European governments are being conveyed, it is believed, by Mr. Norman Davis, the "roving Ambassador" of the United States.

Mr. Norman Davis sailed for Europe to-day aboard the liner Washington, long conversations with the President, dealing almost entirely, it is understood, with the problem of disarmament.

The only indication which Mr. Davis would give of the nature of his messages, was that President Roosevelt is extremely hopeful that Europe would find a road leading to disarmament.

Mr. Norman Davis's plans include provision for a stay of a few days in London, after which he will proceed to Geneva for the resumed discussions on disarmament.

Closely questioned by newspapermen before his departure, Mr. Davis declared emphatically that he does not intend to discuss either war debts or economic questions.—Reuter.

FLYING BOATS MISHAP

FORCED DOWN BY ENGINE TROUBLE

London, Aug. 30.

One of the four Air Force flying boats proceeding to Helsinki for to-day for the Finland "British Week" alighted off the Dutch coast owing to slight mechanical trouble.

One of the other craft also descended to land but no help was required. Both are remaining at Helder to-night and will rejoin the rest of squadron at Copenhagen to-morrow. The other two boats arrived at Esbjerg according to schedule.—British Wireless.

EUROPE AN ARMED CAMP

ANOTHER STEP IN THE PROCESS

Rome, Aug. 30.

Europe grows more and more like an armed camp and the situation is menacing, although there are no real signs of a spark unless it should occur on the Austro-German border.

The "armed camp" movement, exemplified by the defensive preparations of France and Belgium, moved a further step to-day with the arrival in Rome of Prince von Starhemberg and Herr Reichel.

They are from Vienna and are emissaries of the Chancellor, Dr. Dollfuss.

The Prince's visit is in connexion with plans for the reorganisation of the Heilmwehr on the lines of the Italian Fascist organisation.

It is planned to give recruits six months' training instead of a year, thus doubling the number of effectives.—Reuter.

Striking Predictions in Tokyo

Tokyo, Aug. 31.

Japanese official circles predict important changes in the Nanking Government, including the resignation of Mr. Lin Sen, the Chairman of the National Council, the appointment of Mr. Wang Ching-wei, the Leftist leader, to this post and the appointment of Mr. T. N. Soong as President of the Executive Yuan, and General Huang Fu as Foreign Minister in succession to Lo Wen-kai.

It is expected that these important changes will be confirmed at the coming Kuomintang Plenary Session in November or December.

General Huang Fu signed the Tangku armistice with the Japanese and rumours of his new appointment have caused favourable impression here.

ENTRY EXHIBITION NEXT WEEK

For the benefit of amateur photographers and others interested, we are arranging a free exhibition of the entries in the Telegraph Amateur Photographic Competition, which closes to-day and the results of which will be published on Monday.

The exhibition will open on Monday, 4th inst. in the Board Room of the Morning Post Building, and will continue until Thursday, 7th inst. from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. All entries received will be on view, and the owners of pictures are requested to kindly refrain from removing them.

POMPEY'S FORM

GREAT WIN AT SUNDERLAND

LATEST HOME FOOTBALL

London, Aug. 30.

A programme of twenty matches was played in the English football league to-day, teams in all four divisions being engaged.

There were naturally some unexpected results. The best performance in the First Division was that of Portsmouth who journeyed to Sunderland and took away both points. This was Pompey's second away match of the season, and they have gained three points from the engagements.

Stoke, one of the promoted teams continued to show excellent form. They followed up their home victory against Chelsea last Saturday with a division of spoils on the Liverpool ground to-day, each team scoring once.

Hull, who lost on their own ground last week gave a complete reversal of form by visiting Bradford City and winning. West Ham, who rattled up four goals against Bolton on Saturday went to Plymouth and helped themselves to another four. Plymouth, however, were just as effective in front of goal and a drawn game resulted.

Chesterfield are making an impression. On Saturday they won their opening match by scoring six goals and to-day they went to Wrexham and pierced the net three times to win by the odd goal in five.

The results as enabled by Reuter were:—

FIRST DIVISION.
Birmingham	0	Manchester C. 1

THE WORLD OF WOMEN

YOUR CHILDREN

By Olive Roberts-Barton

Timmy rode up and down the street on his tricycle. It was new and the other children stood around with their fingers in their mouths admiring it.

He never offered anyone a ride. When he saw a group of other children he made it a point to ride past. His enjoyment in his new possession consisted in showing off.

After a week or so the other children lost interest. Timmy could ride until he was exhausted, but nobody paid any attention.

One day someone had left a kiddy car on the pavement. Timmy rode at it slowly and pushed it with his front wheel. He followed it up and pushed it off the curb. Billy's older brother saw it and yelled, "Hey you, go out and pick that up and bring it back."

Timmy didn't. But then the other boy was only six himself and he knew he couldn't make him.

Billy came out and got on his kiddy car and rode up and down.

The next day Billy was on the pavement. He had his back toward Timmy riding on noiseless wheels. Timmy had plenty of room but he stopped. "Get out of the way."

Billy turned but stood still. He didn't quite understand. Timmy rode over his foot. Billy cried and the family rushed out.

"You'll have to be careful," called Billy's mother. "You'll have to watch out for the children."

Here was a new kind of attention. He could cause not only envy but fear. He was afraid of him.

In the week that followed he quietly went about his "thrill" business. He didn't talk. He didn't answer back. He was an only child and his mother had trained him to play by himself.

A Neighbour-Takes Action

One day he deliberately ran a boy down. This was the worst of all his experiments. The others consisted in grazing small bodies or riding over dog's tails.

This boy was hurt. He couldn't get up. Timmy didn't run away. He sat on his tricycle and said, "I couldn't help it. He got in my way."

Then a lady came out. She had been observing the young Pizarro for some days. She went over to Timmy's house and rang the bell. And she said some things to Timmy's mother. The latter was very frigid and spoke of busybodies and minding one's own affairs and so on.

"I am past being offended," said the neighbour. "You have a child who is wilfully hurting others, children too small to take care of themselves. They are not safe on their own sidewalks."

An Effective Move

With this warning she left. In a few days the same thing happened again. This time it was her little girl.

Now what would you have done?

She did something. She put the tricycle in her car and drove it to the police station. A policeman came around to see Timmy's mother. And Timmy behaved after that.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

Eyebrow Plucking Is Losing Favour

By Alicia Hart

Hold yourself in line when it comes to the line of your eyebrows. Most women lose their sense of proportion when they get eyebrow tweezers in their hands. Don't lose yours!

Fashions in the ways to wear your eyebrows have changed. You no longer tweeze them into a thin, straight line if you would be smart. Their own natural line is much more becoming.

However, don't discard eyebrow tweezers altogether. You'll need them to remove straggling hairs which grow down too far on your eye lids and the ones that have grown too closely together in the middle.

You should have a smooth, unlined brow. Eyebrows which grow close together in the middle mar its appearance. Tweeze those hairs often. If your eyebrows are unusually thick and have a shaggy appearance, thin out a few hairs occasionally.

Don't try to change the natural line. Leave them in the line in which they grow—just be sure and keep that natural line smooth, with no rough edges.

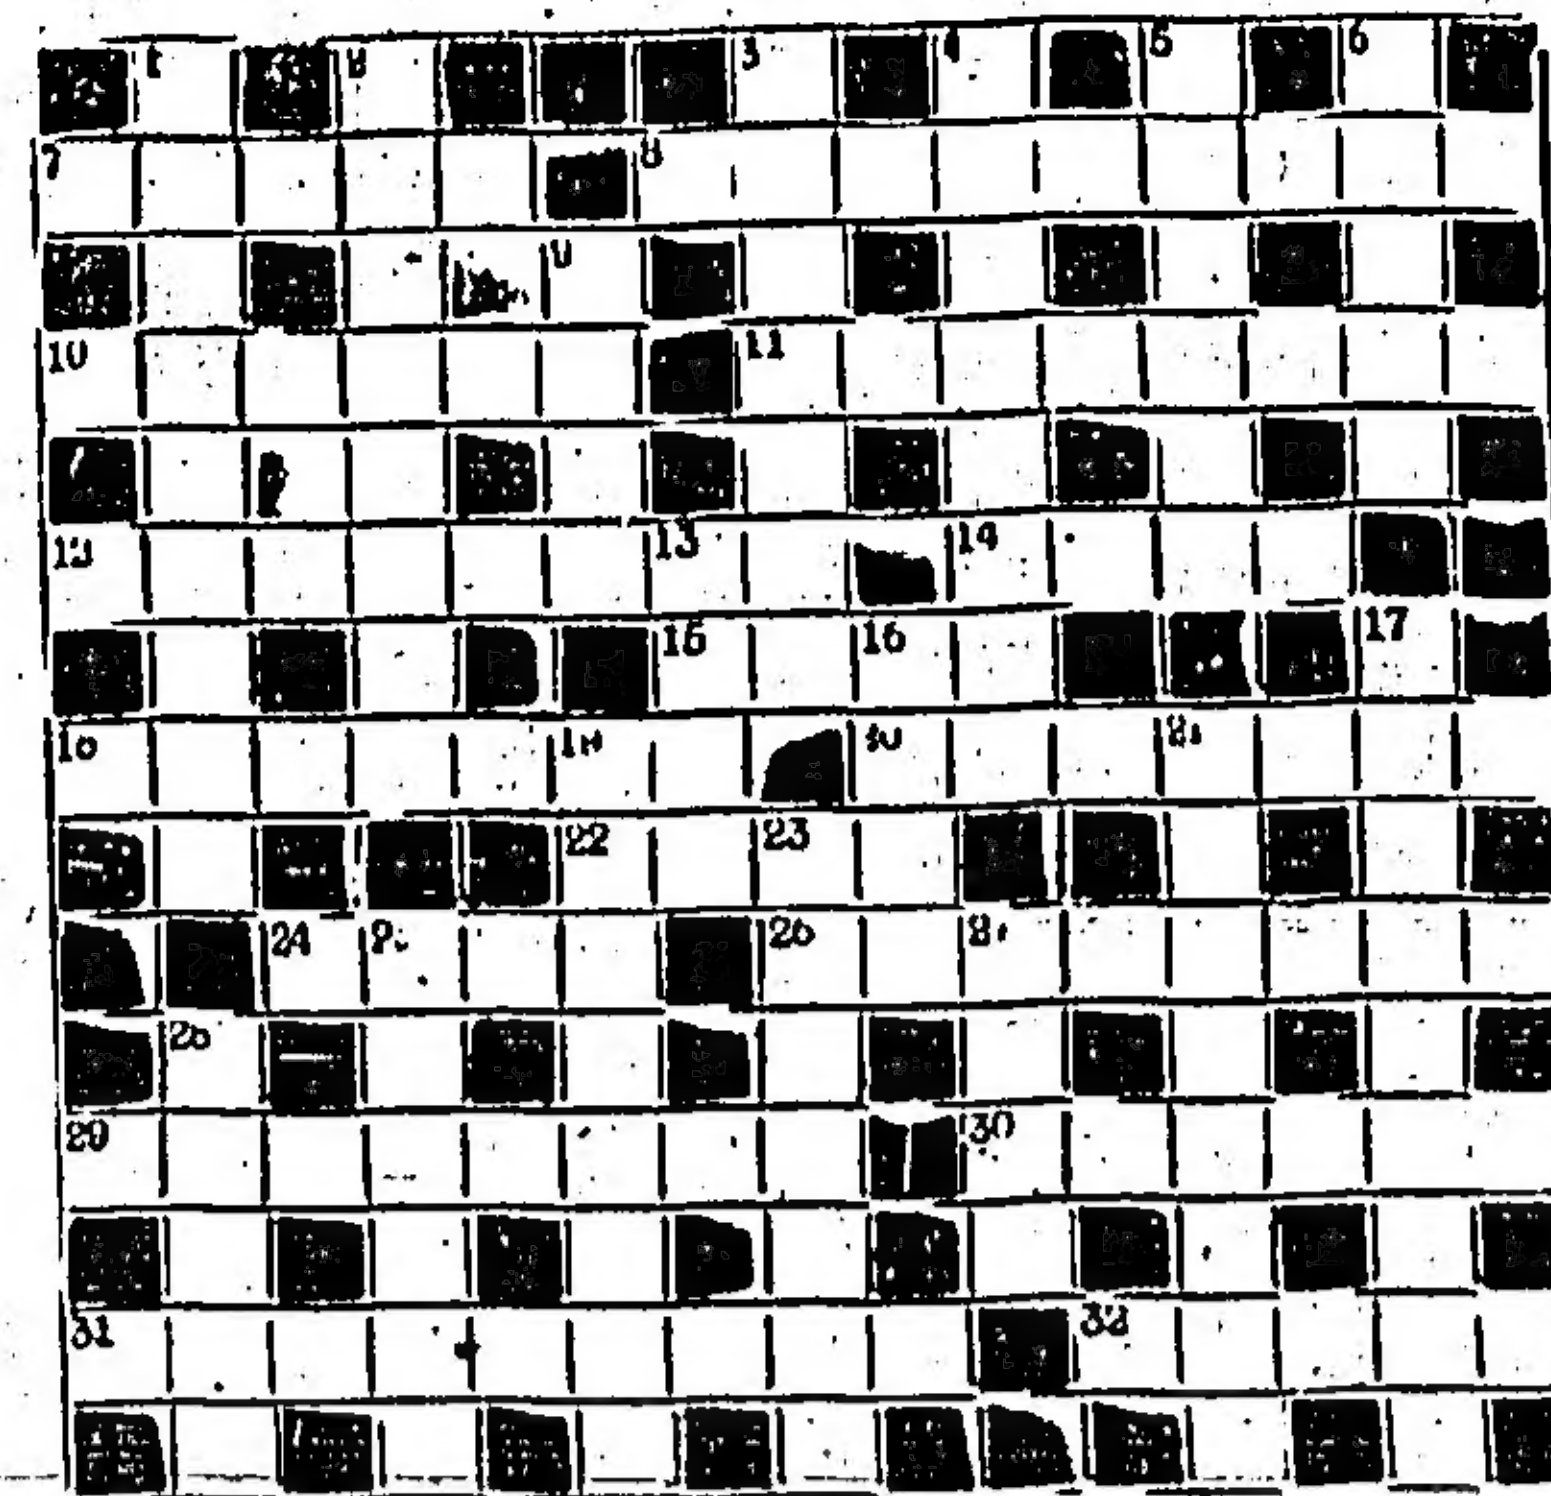

Tweezing your eyebrows until only a few hairs remain defeats your purpose. Instead of enhancing the beauty of your forehead and eyes, the excessive tweezing will serve to disfigure them.

If your eyebrows aren't thick enough, you might use a little plain white vaseline on them at night.

Don't forget to brush them with a small, soft brush after you powder your face. They won't be shiny and beautiful if they are allowed to become encrusted with powder dust.

Eyebrow pencils can be used to darken eyebrows that are too light coloured. But use it sparingly, especially in the daytime.

Mr. Major's Married, Too!

BEGIN HERE TO-DAY

EVE HAYLESS, pretty assistant to EARLY HARNES, advertising manager of Hixby's department store, secretly marries DICK RADZIL, a construction engineer. Dick wants Eve to give up working but she refuses. The same day Eve learns that she is to go to New York for the store and must leave that night. Dick takes her to the station but throughout the week in New York she has no word from him. The days there are busy. She meets THERON REECE, who is much attracted by her and she visits IRENE PRENTISS, a former schoolmate who is playing the stock market and advises Eve to do the same. Eve returns to Lake City at the end of a week. Back at the office she finds a new copy writer, MONA ALLEN, who appears to be a trouble-maker. MARYA VLAD, fashion artist, and AILENE SMITH, stenographer, are Eve's friends. Dick and Eve spend several days at the fashionable Hotel Miramar, and then move into an apartment in an old-fashioned house. Eve works late at the office and arrives home to find Dick preparing dinner. They have a quarrel and Dick leaves.

CHAPTER IX

Dick was firm in his arguments for announcing their marriage. He repeated to Eve all the objections against secret marriages, including the embarrassment she would feel if her business friends should learn of it in a roundabout way and question her. Dick was honest and straightforward to a degree that Eve at times regarded as bluntness, but he had a certain dignity that nothing could shake and which Eve could not help but respect. And it gave her a deep sense of satisfaction to know that he commanded the respect of others.

Eve wanted each of the events of her life to stand out—to be remembered by her friends as different from the usual. Marriage customs, Dick assured her, had not come about by chance. Their purpose was to emphasize the importance of the marriage tie. To strengthen it and give it dignity. After repeated discussions and arguments Eve and Dick compromised. It was agreed that their relative should be informed of their marriage but that, for the present, Eve need not announce it to her business associates. She took into her confidence a friend who was a promising young artist and asked her to design a combination Christmas card and wedding announcement. These were brought home by a very excited Eve one snowy Saturday early in December. She and Dick spent their spare time addressing, sealing and stamping the envelopes and then put them away to be mailed Christmas week. That settled, Dick was frankly relieved.

"Of course, as soon as our friends know of our marriage we will entertain," Eve began. "That's all right," Dick answered, "so long as we know they're coming. Invite them for a definite time. Don't want a lot of people horning in on our privacy when we have something else to do." Eve was silent for a while.

Then she ventured, hesitatingly. "Dick, do you think—well, you see this place is quite shabby looking. On, I know—it has atmosphere and all that; but, well, I'd hate to have some of the people I know find me living here."

Eve wilted a little before the question in Dick's clear, steady eyes. "What do you propose doing?" he asked. "Oh, find another place." This a trifle defiantly.

Dick was silent. He was fond of picturesque old houses under ancient trees. Eve called his attention to the broken step, the dismal bathroom, the unattractive kitchen.

"I'll fix them up for your aesthetic friends," he promised. He was as good as his word. Delighted at his offer, Mrs. Brooks purchased paint and linoleum and left Dick, unhampered by directions, to transform the kitchen as Eve wished it. The walls he painted a creamy buff with deeper buff woodwork. Table and chairs he enamelled in lavender. Eve hung apple-green satins over-drapes at the large, old-fashioned windows and the glass curtains were of cream net. They found an old screen in the attic, and this Eve decorated effectively and used to conceal the stove and sink. An old mahogany bookcase was moved in to be used as a cupboard. Eve brought home a quaint lampshade with a gay lining. This cast a rosy glow over the room.

"I love it," she exclaimed when the transformation was complete. "It looks like a charming breakfast room instead of a kitchen."

The gloomy bathroom was changed into spic and span pink-and-whiteness above the baseboard. The baseboard itself was enamelled black to top the pink and white block pattern of the linoleum floor. Eve used a flowered cretonne curtain at the window.

These were changes that would affect the rentability of the apartment and Dick seemed to enjoy making the improvement. "There!" he declared when he had finished the painting. "This is far more comfortable than a box-like place up three flights of stairs for the same price. We have room to turn around here."

Eve had worked out a programme which she followed with military precision. Dick co-operated with her to the best of his ability. There were times when his work made it impossible for him to reach home punctually and he had not time to do the marketing, start the dinner and change into fresh clothes. At such times Eve sat unsympathetic through the meal and answered his questions briefly. Dick was even-tempered through it all. The truth was that he worried over Eve. She seemed restless and often looked tired. True, they had been married only a few weeks—crowded, anxious weeks in spite of their happiness. He decided Eve must be working too hard at the office and told her so.

"It's not that at all!" she assured him. "But after working in an office with well-groomed businessmen all day do you expect me to look pensive and cheerful when I come home and find my husband wearing a blue flannel shirt—and to-night even boots? High boots! MY HUSBAND, of all people, not caring how he looks—I!" Eve grew hysterical and rushed into the living room to throw herself on the day bed where she sobbed until quiet.

Dick, his face white, his lips set in a straight line, remained in the kitchen, staring straight ahead. Presently he arose, cleared the table and stacked and washed the dishes. He did not go near Eve.

After a while she arose, went into the bathroom and bathed her eyes. Then she filled a bowl with suds and washed out some stockings and lingerie too dainty and fragile to trust to any hands but her own. She had intended to do this task in the morning, after Dick had left for the day's work. But she was in a perverse mood to-night.

"Nothing to be sorry for," he answered. He had had time to think things out—to make allowances.

"I was horrid to you." "You were saying what you (Continued on Page 10.)

NOTICE.

THE HONGKONG BREWERS & DISTILLERS LTD.

The Hongkong Brewers & Distillers Ltd. wish to thank their customers and the public for the enthusiastic reception given to H.B. Beer. They wish to apologise for any disappointment that may have been caused through delay in delivering orders.

The demand for H.B. Beer, when it was announced that it was on sale, was so much greater than the most sanguine hopes of the Company had led them to expect, that though bottling is in progress day and night, it has been impossible to fill all orders directly they were received. Orders are being filled in strict rotation, and it would very much facilitate quick delivery if orders were given a few days before the BEER is required.

VITAL QUESTIONS BEFORE BRITAIN

London, Aug. 30. War debt conversations with America, trade negotiations with Soviet Russia, and other foreign questions, including the meeting of the League of Nations Council which opens at Geneva on September 21, are expected to be the chief subjects for consideration at a meeting of the Cabinet for which ministers have been summoned to London on September 6.

Sir John Simon, who returned yesterday after a cruise to South America, resumed his duties at the Foreign Office to-day, while the Prime Minister, who flew to-day from Lissleworth for a short visit with Lord Londonderry at Mount Stuart, Northern Ireland, is expected in London on September 4.—Reuter.

WORLD CRISIS A WAY OUT

By FREDERICK COPE, A.M.I.E.E.

Mr. Cope's striking articles on the world economic crisis which were recently published in the Hongkong Telegraph are now available in pamphlet form. One of the features, repaying study, is the close similarity between the plan of reform suggested by this local writer, and certain aspects of the Roosevelt recovery programme. The author's ideas are naturally far too advanced for active promotion at the present time, but they are particularly interesting in view of the fact that President Roosevelt, in striking out on a path of his own, has travelled in the same direction.

The pamphlet is one of forty-four pages and can be obtained from the South China Morning Post at a cost of—

STREET SLEEPERS AND THE LIKE

If there is one thing more discouraging than preaching social reform in this Colony it must be the response to active measures in the social welfare, judging by the experience met with as an almost invariable rule. A small band of enthusiasts can always be found to promote any good cause, but the public, even if stirred to cursory interest, generally relapses into complete apathy—and another excellent effort fades in futility. The Rev. N. V. Halward is now endeavouring to interest the community in a splendid scheme, insofar as it touches upon the main social problems of Hongkong, for providing shelter for street sleepers during the winter months. Certain features of the programme outlined at the Rotary tiffin might be the subject of criticism, but the motive is good and the need great. Several organisations are giving the project moral and financial support and it starts in circumstances more favourable than most ventures of a similar kind. While it deals with only one of the more obvious results of extreme poverty among a large section of the population, it is at least a start and may ultimately lead to progress in other directions. There is, however, one point which will occur to many, even among those keenest to lend aid in social work, namely, what contribution the Government intends to make. The task of improving the condition of society, raising the standard of living and, therefore, of health, is not one which finally rests with public-spirited individuals and private charity. It is the responsibility of government. This view has never yet been formally accepted by the Hongkong Government, hence the need for community efforts to alleviate the lot of unfortunate like street sleepers. But we doubt if our administration of so-called benevolent autocracy can permanently evade the true functions of modern government, as expressed in the phrase, care for the welfare of every citizen. For this reason, we feel that far greater achievement is possible, in the long run, by concentrating on agitation for a real contribution by government to social services than by spasmodic attempts by Church organisations, Rotary Clubs and the like to meet particular needs. There are aspects of life in Hongkong far more distressing than the fate of those compelled to sleep in the streets. Some who are apparently able to keep a roof over their heads are worse off, physically and morally, than those who take shelter in doorways at night. But as we suggested in opening, those who take up social welfare work in this Colony are soon thoroughly

NOTES OF THE DAY

CATHEDRAL DANGER

The appeal launched by St. John's Cathedral will, we feel sure, meet with a ready response. After a policy of careful finance over the last few years, the Trustees had just begun to see a possibility of stability when along came the white ant invasion. Restoration will cost a sum in the vicinity of $5,000 and unless public assistance is forthcoming, the Cathedral authorities will be in a very precarious position.

MORE THAN A HOPE

From many quarters of the globe have come expressions of definite opinion on the part of youth with regard to war. In the main, the consensus is that under any circumstances war is a mistake—unintelligent, futile, horrible. Perhaps the most encouraging feature in this voice of the young is that its verdict is one of conviction. It is not the result of emotionalism but of reasoning. The educational efforts of various international organisations, which often in the last fifteen years seemed but to mark time, are now bearing fruit. The younger generation not only regards international cooperation as the normal method of conducting affairs, but it recognizes that isolation and hyper-nationalism are inimical to progress.

SHANGHAI ISSUE

The obstruction which is being offered in Shanghai to the proposed conference of the Anti-War Congress appears to derive from people who refuse to recognise the strength of this movement. A good deal has been heard of subversive tendencies and so on, but the opposition seems largely to be based upon prejudice. There seems no really good reason why permission for the conference should be refused. The authorities can easily put an end to the sessions if the delegates overstep the mark. The truth, of course, is that Shanghai does not fear anything from Lord Marley or any other of the foreign delegates to the Conference. If there is any cause for anxiety and alarm, it lies with elements already active in China, whose work underground is likely to be infinitely more dangerous than a speech or two at a conference intended solely to foster the spirit of antipathy to war.

OUR AFFLUENT TREASURY

Government has indicated its intention of embarking upon fresh public works schemes and in so doing has anticipated public feeling that the Colony's credit balance is unusually and unnecessarily large. The latest statement issued shows that the Colony's Exchequer has a surplus over $16,000,000, the largest since the halcyon days of 1924. There can be two explanations for this apparently happy state of affairs. Either the Colony is over-taxed or the Government is not spending enough. There are countless ways in which part of the $16,000,000 in excess of our cautious Treasurer's desired minimum balance, could be wisely expended; and there are many ways in which relief could be given to the taxpayer. It seems rather anomalous that the Colonial Treasury should be in its most affluent condition while business in the Colony is acutely depressed.

ANSCHLUSS

France is acting vigorously in support of its declaration that under no circumstances will it permit the Anschluss—the union of Germany and Austria—which is prohibited by the treaties. But, in diplomacy, it must always be remembered that changing conditions may produce revolutions of thought; and the case of the Anschluss, it is obvious that Italy has become the pivot of European policy. While France and Germany remain in opposition, it was apparent that Italy must possess a deciding voice. If Italy had ranged itself with Germany, French dominance would simply disappear and Anschluss would be certain. Fortunately, perhaps, Italy has seen eye to eye with France in this matter and German aspirations are checked.

can do and the other dismisses the matter with the conscience-easing thought that the people can

ENGLAND'S LOST PRESTIGE

YOUTH'S DEMAND FOR ITS RECOVERY

By ANDREW SOUTAR

HERE is a youth! Clean-cut, fresh from school, vigorous, intelligent, and ambitious; he stands for all that we mean when we speak of the English race.

He was born in 1914—that year, as the historian may write, when judgment seemed to have fled to brutish beasts and men had lost their reason. This youth, as a suckling, absorbed from his mother that pride of birth which made of the word "England" a synonym for virility, honour, dignity and justice. He was yet a babe in arms when the prestige of the English was being lifted to its zenith by sacrifices made in every field of war.

What of his position to-day? He is standing at the school-house door. He wants to go out into the world and help rebuild a shattered fabric. But where is the national prestige of Yesterday? By whom has it been jeopardised? Whose implish humour would have him believe that patriotic fervour is merely sentiment based on a liking for martial music? He wants a job. He wants to go from beneath the roof-tree to those other parts of the world where Britons have gone before him. His dilemma is not without tragedy. Does it mean nothing to you?

It is no new phase of life that here, in England, there should be few openings for the exercise of his hands and head. His forebears countered the handicap by going abroad; why shouldn't he go, with every prospect of filling a glorious niche in history? Why shouldn't his dreams be as golden as those of his immediate ancestors without being deemed fantastic? Isn't the right to go his heritage? The heritage that came down the years from the early pioneers? He is not going into exile because of some offending, nor does he seek sanctuary among strangers because his own people doubt his worth. He wants to feel that somewhere—out yonder—the Big Chance awaits him. Exile?

"Never was I so little, never was I so lone, But over the scud and the palm-trees an English flag was flown."

If he cannot materialise the dreams, hasn't he the right to ask who has dissipated the heritage? Let's put our heads together on behalf of the young Briton. Something must be done for him, even though it be no more than the stiffening of his resolution. Those who appear to be indifferent to the warping of Empire bonds must be shown the danger to the house as a whole if its prestige is impaired.

There was a time when the word "Briton" acted as a talisman from China to Peru, from the Lizard to the Southern Cross. One had only to utter a word and the English tongue compelled respect, even homage. A youth went out into the lone places, and if he didn't find a material fortune he discovered that which was greater—men honoured and envied him for his nationality. The Chinese merchant accepted his word as his bond; the coolies jabbered his praises on the wharves of Shanghai and the beach of Kowloon.

They said of him, "One piece of mouth, one piece of tongue." They could depend on his assurance; they believed him to be just—stern, maybe, but just. On the rubber plantations of Malay he ruled by right of his birth and breeding; in the tropics he might fume and sweat, but courage was there; he imparted it to those who fumed and sweated with him. Never a foreign port where he wasn't welcome. The Japanese chose him to command their ships when they were learning the rudiments of navigation; old British pilots still linger on the rugged volcanic slope of Nagasaki at the entrance to the Inland Sea. Far north, the Laplander agreed his geniality and justice; South, the Kafir was proud to serve.

Who could rightly appraise the value of such a heritage? The young Briton himself was not so spendthrift of pride that he mightly dissipated it. If he felt the urge to get rich quickly at the expense of the natives' good opinion of him, it was overcome by the reflection that he was sullying the prestige of the Flag.

If the conscience of the professional politician is calm in face of the altered conditions prevailing to-day, where are we to look for the disturbing factor? The source of the early pioneer's strength and dignity was in Westminster. He knew that he had behind him the full weight and influence of a governing body that set country before self. He might encounter a multitude of difficulties, and be called on to yield up life itself, but there was always the spur that "Somebody at home would want to know the reason why." He had no need to ingratiate himself with lesser minds; he could inspire confidence without carrying either an olive branch or a dog-whip in his hand.

What of the position to-day? To be blind to a loss doesn't make it a gain. To restore the balance, the logical thing to do is to trace the fault to its origin and rebuild. There is a vast army of high-spirited youths in this country eager to take the Flag into the far corners of the earth. They seek to go as ambassadors of trade and representatives of the country to which they owe allegiance. Their Public School training has fitted them for even greater tasks and triumphs than awaited their ancestors, but they are handicapped by the changed conditions at the base. Vacillation is a flaw in national character that brings dignity to the ground with a run. Timidity in a leader creeps with the breath of plague through the ranks. "What man is there that is fearful and fainthearted? Let him go and return unto his house, lest his brethren's heart faints as well as his heart."

There is scope in the outer world for this army of young Britons, but are they to be denied the inestimable advantage that was granted their forefathers?—the advantage of calling themselves British, and all that expression used to mean? There is (Continued on Page 7.)

The Very Idea!

AUTUMN FASHIONS

By Eddie "Abigail" Kelly

EDWARD Kelly announces that, commencing Wednesday next, he is severing his connexion with the Telegraph. He has decided to go into business.

At no time like the present, says Mr. Kelly, does business want capable men at the helm. Which is why he has decided to go into the drapery business.

HERE'S made in your eye.

Chic men are coming into their own this winter. Which does not mean that their relations are dying, but simply that we've decided to bring out the new Winter Fashions for men.

From now on we are going to advocate the cult of beauty without the beast. We have stepped into the ranks of Hongkong's B.Y.T.'s.

This winter, for instance, the eye-brows will be worn right across the face for warmth and will terminate at each end in a question mark.

Eyelashes will be braided a la mode, while tinted glasses, especially since the introduction of Hongkong beer, will be all the rage.

In order to see through the tints, the glasses should be worn on the tip of the nose, so that the wearer can see over them.

This will be easy, as noses will be tipped this winter. "Abigail" has already received many anxious enquiries from mothers on the subject of nose-tilting.

The usual way is to rear the baby on the Peak, but if this is too expensive, a clothes peg attached to the nose, and tied round the neck with a piece of string will be found just as effective.

Moustaches will be distinctly taboo, and all superfluous facial hairs should be removed with Veet. Razors must be avoided as they roughen the complexion.

Beauty spots are coming into prominence again, and the exchange rate on moles has risen owing to the increased demand.

Even warts can be passed off at a pinch.

Finally, it is imperative that we all wear dainty little card on the left button-hole bearing the word "MALE" in gold, embroidered lettering.

Should this prove insufficient it will be necessary to call a policeman.

BUSINESS FIRST

We went into a shop the other day.

"We want to buy a little present for our wife," we said to the girl, in accents sweet and low.

"Could I interest you in a bathing suit?" she asked.

"You could, girly," we said.

"But let's fix up about the present first."

Now why did she slap our face?

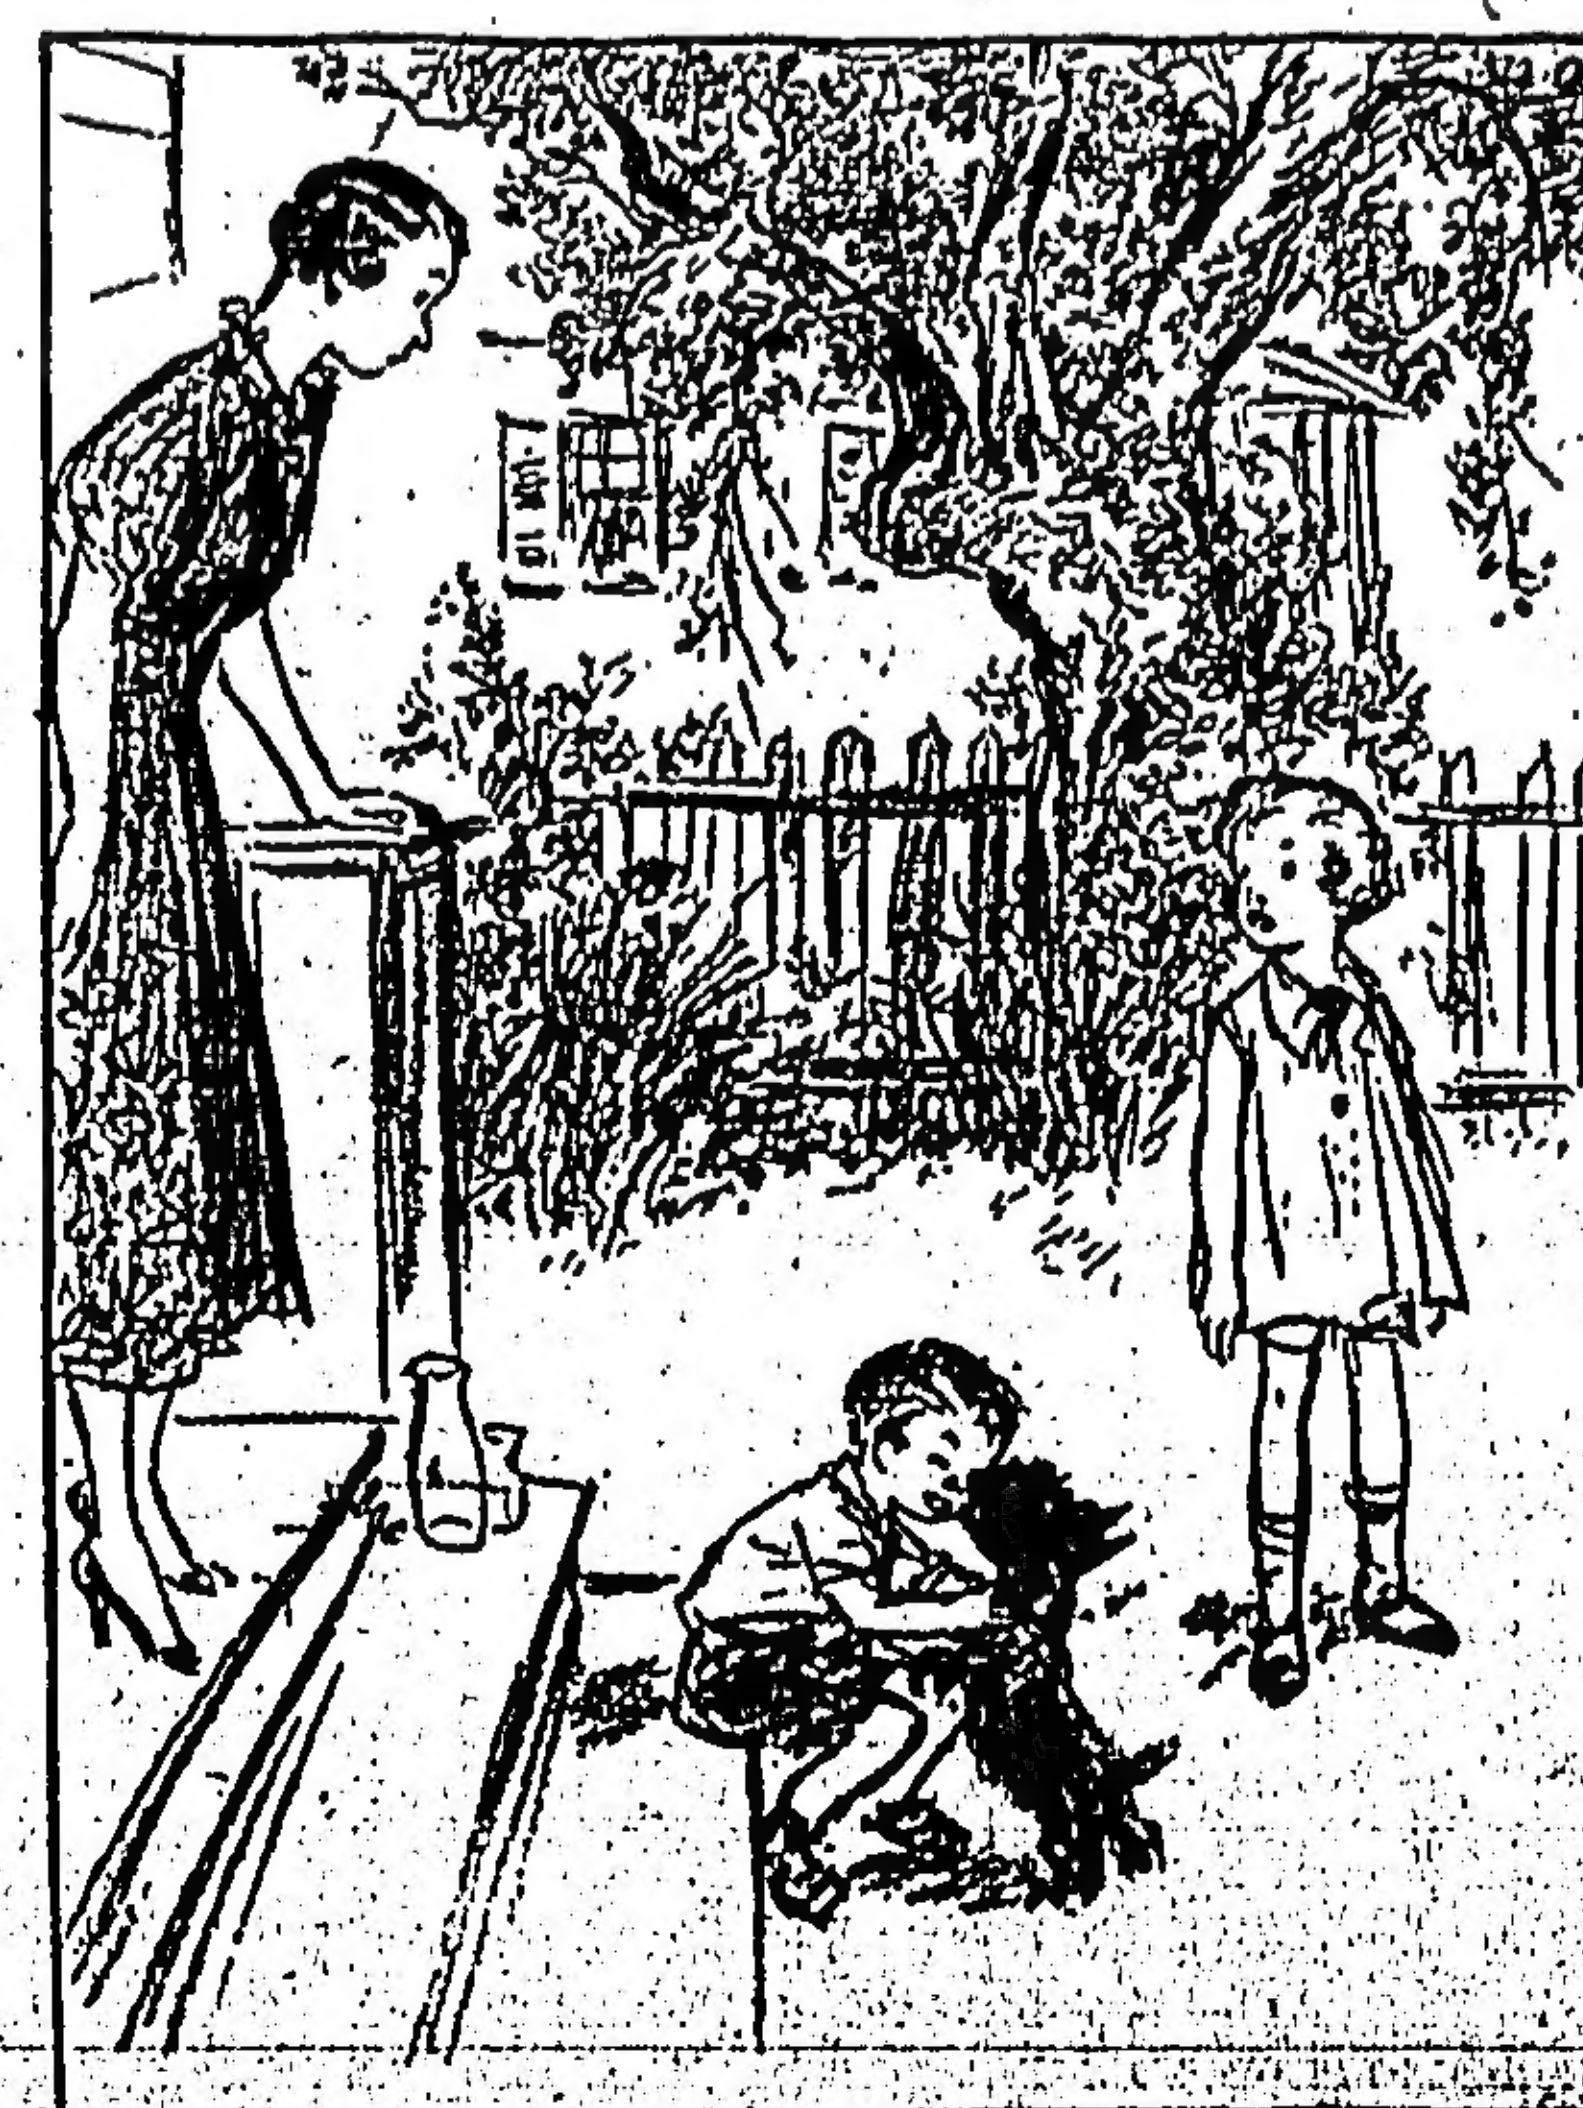

ANSWERS TO CO-RE'S

Yesterday we had a Spring Cleaning at our desk in the office. After we'd skimmed through the thousands of chits, final notices, photographs from lady admirers and congratulatory messages from our Public we discovered the following letters that required attention:

Dear Edward,—Could you give me some information on the proposed Divorce laws for Hongkong. My wife and I often have our neighbours in for a friendly game of bridge, but my wife will persist in trampling my Ace. If the new divorce laws do not cover this crime, what other course can I take to break her off this vile habit. Cuthbert Cuthbertson.

Dear Cuth.—Bury her with simple honours.—Eddie.

Dear Mr. Kelly.—The other day I commenced knitting a jumper for the winter. But, somehow, it doesn't seem to be coming out right. I have been thinking: it puts one side and plain the other. What would you call this?—Mildred.

"We did go to see grandma, but she couldn't be bothered."

A FINE NEW BUILDING AT STANLEY

MARYKNOLL FATHERS' PROJECT

SPLENDID STRUCTURE FOR RESTHOUSE

CHINESE MOTIF IN DESIGN

On a hill at Stanley, rising to over 200 feet above the Bay, work was recently started on the site for the new sanatorium for the Maryknoll Fathers, youngest of the Missions in Hongkong.

Containing many features that are unusual, the new building when completed within less than a year, will constitute one of the most impressive landmarks on the south side of the Colony.

Artistic employment of the well-known Chinese ornamental roofing will be one of the chief features in a happy blending of Western and Chinese architecture, a lead for which was given by the Theological College of the Jesuit Fathers at Aberdeen.

CHINESE MOTIF.

The Chinese motif in the new Sanatorium will be repeated with Moon Gates, green glazed "bamboos," and other incidentals conducing to the restfulness of the surroundings.

When completed, the building will have cost $240,000, in addition to the cost of the grounds of which only one-fifth will be occupied.

The chief constructional details are a main block and wings at right angles to it and which are to be the Chapel and Library of the Fathers. A central terrace and entrance pavilion between these two wings will have enclosed, with the outer walls, two inner Courtyards to be laid out as pleasure gardens.

CHAPEL AND LIBRARY.

The main block will be of four floors including the ground floor. As is indicated in the illustration, the Chapel and Library wings will rise only to the level of the first floor. The Chapel will have a crypt in the lower ground floor.

The roofs of the four buildings including the imposing entrance pavilion will be of green glazed tiles with highly ornamental ridges.

Two stone vases, guarding the approach to the entrance pavilion, will further set off the symmetry of the ensemble. The Moon Gates under the central terrace walk are other delightful details to be noted.

NORTHERN ASPECT.

The block measures 160 feet across and 117 feet deep, and will have a northern aspect.

Reinforced concrete will be chiefly employed, but granite will also be largely drawn upon for the lower floors and ornamental details. The external walls to the ground floors of the main block, and the ground floors of the Chapel and Library blocks will be of hammer dressed facing granite.

The same material will be also employed for the entrance pavilion, the garden steps walls, and the piers to the main block supporting the terrace from the entrance pavilion; as well as the landing to garden steps.

"CRAZY" PAVING.

The two vases to the entrance pavilion and the rims of the two Moon Gates under the terrace will be executed in fine punched granite, while the pathways around the turfed plots in the Courts will be laid out in granite random paving.

The external walls of the main block, from the granite wall to the lower story, up to the cornices, as well as the gables, and the pediments of the main, chapel and Library blocks are to be faced; in the case of 14 inch thick walls with bricks, and in the case of 9 inch thick walls with tiles to match the bricks in colour and shape.

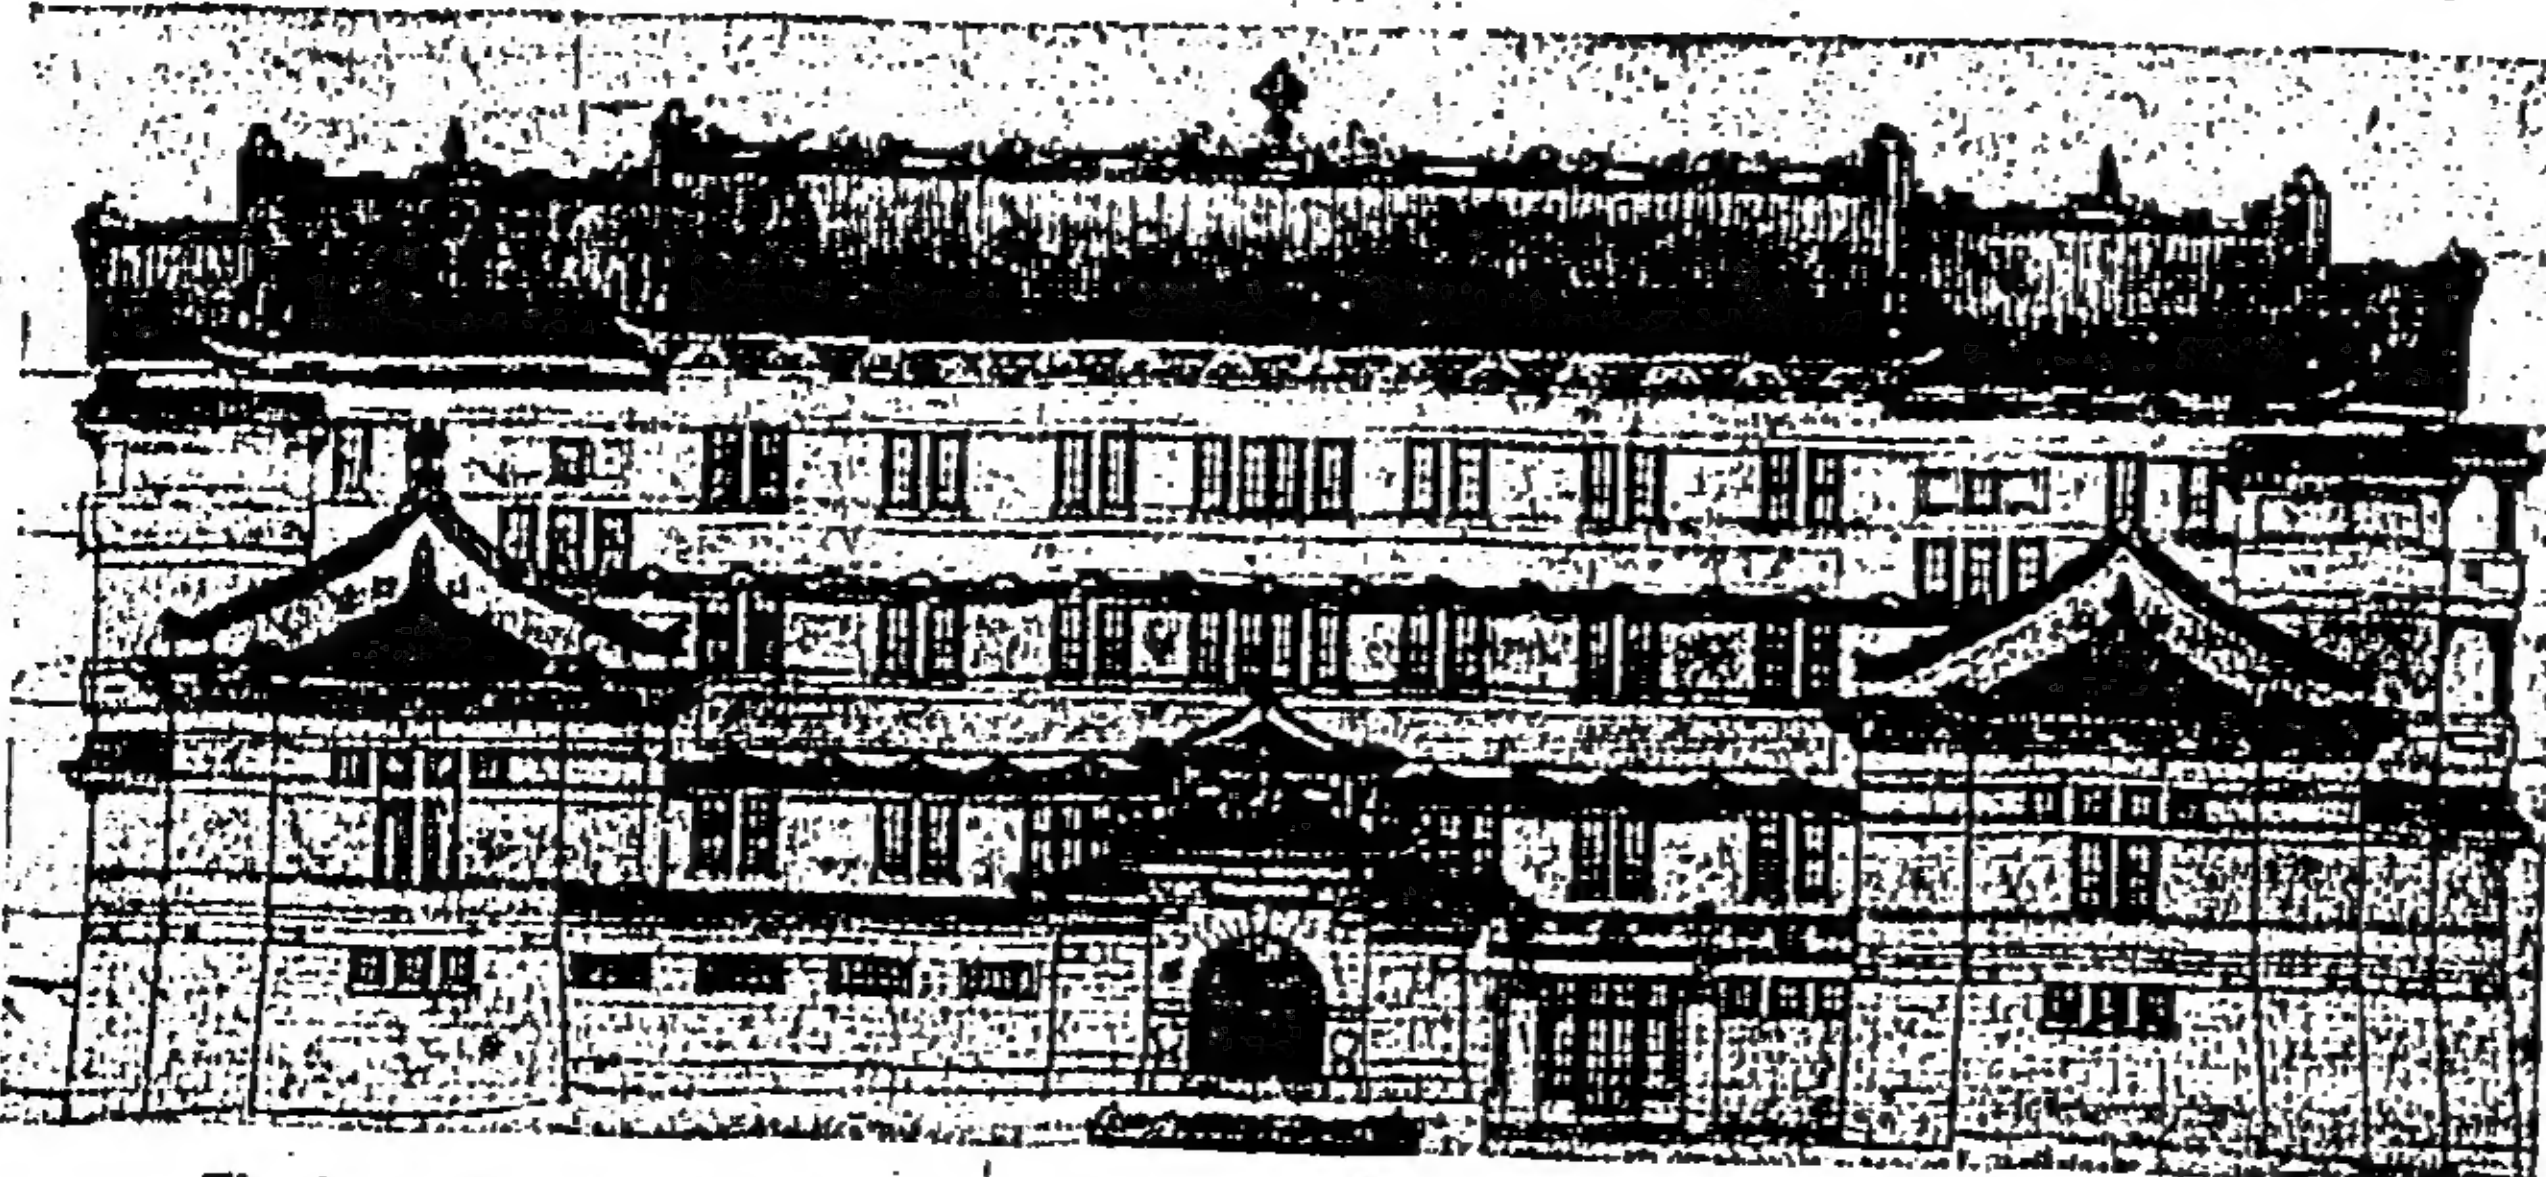

The steps and landings of the two main stairs are to be paved with terrazzo, as is the service staircase from the lower to the upper ground floor.

Blue glazed perforated tiles will be set in the verandah parapet walls, and green glazed "bamboos" will be inserted in the openings next to the Moon Gates.

Mirabow wood, which gives a high polish, will be used for the flooring.

ST. JOHN'S CATHEDRAL WHITE ANT MENACE

than 30 battens, were sufficiently damaged to need renewing. In many places the ants have passed right over one piece of wood to attack another more succulent piece.

ANTS' ALARM SIGNALS.

On two distinct occasions, on being disturbed, a definite alarm signal was heard, the sound of hundreds of mandibles being clamped together, somewhat similar to the noise of a cicada only very "plaintive."

A type of honey comb or sponge like structure was found in two or three places which might be interpreted as nest houses or colonies that had connections with their headquarters but were self-supporting. An interesting theory is that they are store houses for food which is taken from here to supply the young, the soldier ants and the queen, none of which is able to forage for itself.

TRACKING THEM DOWN.

No nest was found in the Cathedral roof and so attention was turned to the Compound. Three trees were found to have live white ants in them. The method to discover if any of these connected to the Cathedral was to dig a transverse trench between. This trench was then left for a day. The next day in three or four places new tracks were seen in the cutting, either covering up the apertures or attempting to establish contact again. As the insects are the enemy or rather the food of all other ants and birds, also as they cannot live long in the sunlight, they have to construct their tunnels in self-protection.

In one place at the entrance of a tunnel about nine inches below the ground level, and on the near side towards the tree were four or five soldier ants, all facing outwards.

The blind creatures, for no wingless white ants can see, armoured with their massive heads were waving their mandibles and antennae in the air to prevent any marauders or enemies from approaching.

SOMETHING PRECIOUS.

This was an indication that there was something precious to guard, consequently the first attack was to follow up this channel and the trench led to the foot of the tree. Here right amongst the roots the nest was found. It was left open and the little mud bulwarks erected by them daily were daily cleared away in the hope that the difference in temperature and exposure would exterminate them. After which the nest was flooded with termites poison. The Queen Ant was not discovered.

The other tracks from the original trench were found to lead to curious pale green balls about five inches across, the colouring commands a sweeping view of the Bay with the ancient Chinese village at the foot and modern buildings on the hills across. The side of the hill from the Bay is covered with dense foliage, and an old path now being used by the builders as an approach to the site, can with little additional work be converted into a charming walk.

In the main block some 38 bedrooms will be laid out in the upper floors, while in the ground and lower ground floors there will be a number of common, social, and other rooms in addition to the usual offices and quarters for the staff and servants.

As its name indicates, the place will be used as a Rest House for missionaries from the interior.

was mould which had developed after the disturbance and consequent similar structures found on the initial disturbance of a nest were of a clean brown colour. The substance of these is like thick crumbly paper and honey-combed just like a sponge. They contain the young which are very white and almost translucent. A veritable nursery.

ANOTHER CLUE.

For a week following this, practically no fresh signs were seen. This was worrying for it was known that other nests existed. Then one morning a new run several yards long was found in the garden immediately outside the Choir vestry, and on the other side of the path new tracks still being built were seen on a young tree. The same procedure of trench digging here exposed a very deep hole more than an inch in diameter, running almost vertically downwards.

As the "Fah-wong" had given information that an old tree now demolished had been very close to here, the hole was probably an eaten out root. The hole was flooded with white ant poison and left for the time being.

IN WATER CHANNEL.

The knowledge of the necessity of moisture for the ants and the general inferred direction made the excavation of a short run of cracked surface water channel inevitable. Here again the speed and size of new tracks built in one night after a cutting had been made showed the importance of this track, further soldier ants were seen here and this line is now being followed up.

It is fairly conclusive that the ants in the Cathedral roof have their headquarters in the ground.

To many people the maggot-like amber coloured ants that swarm about June are the normal and only type of termite. The wings of these creatures drop off within an hour of leaving the nest and they are then left defenceless to crawl away to some dark corner. Their future is not being dealt with here.

MYSTERY CREATURE.

Several different types of white ants are to be found in one nest, while each nest seems to develop peculiarities of its own and have strong variations. The "workers" found in the ground around the Cathedral are generally a light brown in front, dark cream in the middle and grey for the last third of them. The roof workers are more creamy in colour. The average length is about 1/4 of an inch. The soldiers are twice as long and more robustly built altogether, their armoured plated head and mandibles being half their length. One positively snow white and 3/4 of an inch long was found, whose function cannot yet be ascertained.

THE BATTLEGROUND.

The compound is getting the appearance of a battle ground, and the clumsy instruments of man and his poison is pitted against the mining engineers, whose speed of construction is comparatively colossal, whose potential creation of new workers runs into thousands an hour, and who work and thrive in the dark; and at times give no indication of their presence until the material upon which they are working collapses.

chair, had expressed regret at not being able to attend the meeting, owing to inconvenience in the time.

Amendments Suggested.

Dealing with the rules, the Secretary read a reply from the Secretary of the Hongkong Hockey Association, in which a few amendments were suggested. From rule 5, which deals with the composition of the Executive Committee, the Association recommended the deletion of the words: "There shall also be a member of the Hongkong Hockey Association."

On a proposal by Mr. Flowerdew, seconded by Mr. Hagan, that Military teams be allowed to enter as a unit on payment of a nominal fee, rule 17 was amended to read as follows: "All Clubs competing in the Tournament shall be required to pay an entrance fee of $10 and a registration fee of $2.50 for twenty-five players, or ten cents each player. Clubs exercising the option of the former will be required to produce a certificate to the effect that all players are members of the Club or unit, and have not played for any other club except where transferred."

Rule 25 was amended to read: "A player may be considered as having been registered if the registration form shall have been completed and received by the Hon. Gen. Secretary or the assistant secretary prior to the commencement of the game in which he takes part."

In connection with rule 35, the Association suggested the following amendment: "That matters regarding misconduct on the field shall be dealt with by the Mamak Hockey Tournament which shall have powers of suspension, etc." Further, "Any appeal against the decision of the Executive Committee may be referred to the Hongkong Hockey Association whose decision shall be final."

Rule 33 reads: "The Tournament shall commence in October and all matches shall be played off by the 15th day of April."

Rule 35 reads: "The times for the commencement of Tournament matches shall be not later than shown hereunder:

October	4.30 p.m.

The Diplomatic Service would be all the richer for the inclusion of these young men. The bridges and viaducts that are yet to be built where Nature holds in check the native mind await the descendants of those who carried into the wilderness from Clyde and Tyne the ring of hammer on rivet. There are plantations in Malay and Ceylon and Sumatra where the British touch might make all the difference between progress and stalemato.

The Youth of Britain deserves its place in the sun. That place should not be obscured by the shadow of political philanthropists to whom Tradition is only legend, and a legend a bed-time story.

There is neither snobbery nor selfishness in the appeal of the class that has made incalculable sacrifices since the War to uphold the dignity and traditions of the Empire—the appeal that Authority shall have some regard for these very sacrifices. CINEMA SCREENINGS

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRES

In "Cynara," the Ronald Colman picture at the King's Theatre to-day the Master of Ceremonies at an English village function is called upon to introduce his committee to welcome James Warlock played by Colman.

"His Grace, the Marquis of Annandale," he announced, reading the line from the script at one of the first rehearsals.

A member of Samuel Goldwyn's staff heard the introduction. It sounded like a genuine name, not a movie introduction. He quickly looked it up.

There was a genuine Marquis of Annandale!

The sleuth hurried to tell Director King Vidor of his discovery, and in the interests of censorship complications, in England, to beg him to delete it, or to change it to a fictitious name.

Vidor was amused. He pointed out the player concerned, a recruit from the Central Casting Office, as an English character player.

"He is the Marquis of Annandale.
He voluntarily offered the use of his own family name, which, for the purpose, was far more impressive than any that we could invent," Vidor explained.

So the line stayed.

"Made on Broadway"

Described as a glittering panorama of New York life from Battery Park to Harlem, "Made on Broadway" is shown on Sunday at the Queen's Theatre with Robert Montgomery and Sally Eilers, two of the screen's most popular younger players, co-starred for the first time.

Montgomery is said to have another high-speed comedy role as Jeff Bidwell, super-fixer, "wise guy" and debonair gambler who hoodwinks society and reaps a harvest on Broadway. Miss Eilers undergoes an interesting character development as the bedraggled cafe waitress who is rescued from a watery grave by Montgomery and who subsequently becomes one of Manhattan's most pampered playgirls.

The unusually strong cast also features Madge Evans as the ex-wife who tries to help Montgomery decide a course of action during his mad career as a high-pressure public relations expert, and the supporting players include the comic Eugene Pallette, C. Henry Gordon, Jean Parker, Ivan Lohbedoff, David Newell, Vince Barnett and Joseph Cawthorn.

"Made on Broadway" is based on the story, "Public Relations," written by Courtney Terrell, one of New York's newspapermen who witnessed many "inside" scenes during his years of metropolitan reporting in one of the city's most colorful administrations.
Report is that actual incidents from his own experience were worked into the picture with persons and places thinly disguised under fictitious names.

"Laughter in Hell"

The right kind of woman in the greatest gift of life, but the wrong kind makes "Laughter in Hell"— points out Universal's powerful drama of that name which is now playing at the Central Theatre. It is impressive with its intensely human theme and characterization.

Laid in a mining town in the South at the close of the 19th Century, the film traces the youth of a young Irishman who marries a faithless girl and finds his life blasted when he discovers her in the arms of his enemy since childhood. His passionate crime sends him to the Hell of a prison camp whose foreman is the brother of the man he has killed.
Interest is heightened when the prisoner makes a break for life, and his efforts to evade the reaches of the law provide the tense film with unlimited suspense.

A fascinating and entirely different background lends the film a unique atmosphere. The action was filmed for the most part in an old section of California which remained virtually unchanged since the days of its settlement and the odd fashions of the "Nineties" aid the picturesque mood the film boasts.

"Pat O'Brien is authentically cast in "Laughter in Hell" as the young Irishman who pays for his passions in the fullest measure. Merna Kennedy gives a bewitching performance as the faithless wife who finds her attraction lead to tragedy.
Gloria Stuart, Bertone Churchill, Tom Brown and other screen players included.

"Best of Enemies"

Here's to every body's happiness!
Here's a round of joy, romance and gaiety—for happy days are really here again!

"Best of Enemies," the new romantic comedy from Fox comes to the King's Theatre next Sunday, for a joyous and timely engagement.
It's a story that brims with youthful romance—overflowing with frothy frivolity—packing a kick everybody will enjoy—plus a cast that sets the carefree, turbulent love of to-day against the amusing prejudices and restrained joviality of yesterday.

Buddy Rogers, in the leading masculine role, comes back to the screen—more sophisticated than ever before. He's learned about women, and women will learn things from him. Marian Nixon plays opposite him—sweeter, more charming, more delightful than you've ever seen her.
Others in the scintillating cast are Frank Morgan, Joseph Cawthorn, Greta Nissen, Arno Frey, William
Lawrence and Anders Van Haden.

"The Devil is Driving"

Large scale, organized automobiles stealing, latest of the rackets to pay a dividend to the underworld, forms the basis of the plot of "The Devil is Driving," commencing to-day at the Queen's Theatre. Edmund Lowe, Wynne Gibson, James Glendon, Lois
Wilson, Dickie Moore and Allan
Dinehart head the cast.

The modus operandi of the auto-stealing gangs—the manner in which they pick up cars, smuggle them to safety, change their features so that they cannot be recognized, and dispose of them, are revealed for the first time in the picture.

Against this exciting background moves the equally exciting story of a good-natured, wise-cracking mechanic who breaks up the gang after his nephew and his brother-in-law have been made its innocent victims. His romance with an equally good-natured, equally smart-aleck night club hostess, runs through the picture.

thought," he said. "That's all right. I want you always to feel free to speak out. That way I'll know what's in your mind."

"Well, I thought being a superintendent meant an office and a polished desk where you sat giving orders. And sometimes when I come home and you are dressed like that—"

"Listen, Eve, I could get awfully mad at you if I didn't realize what makes you talk like that. Now, get this straight! There are still a great many things you have to learn about what makes this world so round. One of them is that the way things look doesn't alter the truth any. Another is that a man usually knows what his job requires. Rough clothes are not necessarily dirty clothes. There are days on the job when I dress up, but I'd look like a damned fool if I wore spats and carried a walking stick when my men are erecting steel."

"You wouldn't look like a fool to me. I think if you stood far enough off from the mess, you wouldn't get spattered with plaster and things."

Dick gave a snort of anger. Eve was persistent. "Couldn't you manage that way?" she wheeled.

With a sigh and an answer of finality. "We had a tough time to-day and if you had seen one-half of it, I believe you'd think a pair of boots and an old suit very sensible to wear."

Eve was accustomed to having her own way. Apparently now that she was married she would have to make some concessions she had not heretofore considered possible. The idea was disturbing and she crept into bed shivering with cold and anger.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By W. E. McKenney

I have recently written to a number of the country's leading contract players asking them for an interesting hand, so I want to give you to-day the hand which was sent to me by Mr. Robert W. Halpin of Chicago, a past-president of the American Bridge League.

Mr. Halpin was captain of the team which represented the Auction Bridge Club of Chicago, which club presented the trophy for national open contract teams-of-four. Mr. Halpin and his teammates proceeded to win this trophy: the first year it was put into play—1929. Mr. Halpin says that the mistake made by a great many contract players is in not providing for a bad trump distribution. In the following hand the careless declarer would try to make the hand by simply setting up the club suit by ruffing one club—and then would complain because of a bad break.

The Bidding

South bid one club, West passed and North made a one over one force of one spade. East passed and South went to two clubs. North then bid two diamonds, South bid two hearts, and North jumped to six hearts.

The Play

West's opening lead was the ten of diamonds, the queen was played from dummy and when East played the ace, South was forced to ruff with the seven of hearts.

Mr. Halpin, figuring that he might get a bad split in trump, now led the three of spades and took the finesse. East winning with the king, East returned the seven of spades which Mr. Halpin won in dummy with the ace.

He then led the four of diamonds from dummy and trumped with the eight of hearts. He cashed his ace and jack of hearts and then led a small club, winning in dummy with the king.

The king and queen of hearts were played from dummy, Mr. Halpin discarding two clubs from his own hand. He led the king of diamonds and discarded his other losing club.

He returned to his own hand by leading a spade and winning with the jack, and then played his ace and queen of clubs for the last two tricks, successfully making his small slam contract.

TAXI-CAB APPEAL

H. E. Lindsell, sitting as a Full Court of Appeal heard the application.

Luk Hip-kee, the claimant, was awarded judgment for the full amount of $900 which he deposited with the Sun Taxi Cab Company whose affairs were later taken over by defendants. Messrs.
Gilman's denied that there was any transfer of the business within the meaning of the Ordinance under which the claim was made.

IMPORTANT MATTER.

Mr. Jenkin said:—This case involves a very important matter from a commercial point of view and if leave to appeal is given everything will turn on the question of whether or not defendants can be made liable under the Fraudulent Transfer of Business Ordinance. If they are not within that Ordinance then there can be no question at all of their non-liability.

Before I refer to the judgment of the learned Judge, I would refer Your Lordships to the Ordinance.

It will be within your recollection now, having seen it, that if a person as a transferee of a business or any portion of a business, has not given the requisite notice in the Government Gazette, he is liable for all the liabilities of the transferor.

If the judgment stands it will mean, on an examination of the facts, that a person who under a Hire Purchase Agreement lets out goods and re-takes them under the Agreement, may be held liable as a transferee for all the liabilities of the person who, under the Agreement, is the hirer.

I am prepared to accept most loyally the facts set out in the judgment.

HIRE PURCHASE.

Messrs. Gilman & Co. let out a dozen motor cars under a Hire Purchase Agreement to the Sun
Taxi Cab Company. Under that Agreement the cars remained the absolute property of Messrs.
Gilman's and they would resume possession if the hirers fell into arrears. They did fall into arrears and accordingly Messrs.
Gilman's put an end to the Agreement. A meeting took place between representatives of the companies on January 24 and it was then decided that the best way of meeting the position would be for Messrs. Gilman's to sell the cars and, out of the proceeds, pay not only what was owing to them but also the creditors of the Cab Company and then to hand over the balance to members of the latter firm.

On the face of it this does not look like a fraudulent transfer and it was evidently not held to be such.

RUNNING OF CARS.

It followed that pending the sale of the cars the defendants should carry on the running of the cars and for this purpose it was arranged that the licences should be transferred to Messrs. Gilman's and the privilege of occupying stands in certain streets by permission of the police department should be transferred to Messrs. Gilman's.

CREDITORS PAID.

At the date of judgment the cars had not been sold but Messrs.
Gilman had paid off some of the creditors during their period of running the cars. That is very important to the question of whether there was fraud or not.

That was all that took place on that date.

The question had been raised as to whether or not it was a transfer within the meaning of the Ordinance. It was argued before the Puisne Judges who held—though he confessed that there was a transfer. I think you will agree with me that if the Puisne Judge still holds the doubt he held them, it is still arguable.

LICENCES OF NO USE.

Clearly the licences were of no use to the Taxi Company without the cars and these latter were the cars and these latter were the
cars and these latter were the cars. The permit to occupy a portion of a public street was of no use to them without the cars and could only be obtained by permission of the police and Messrs.
Gilman's could have got them themselves. It is impossible to hold that this was a transfer of a portion of a trade or occupation.
A point which interests me much more than that one is the point as to whether or not this is the transfer of a business which comes within the Ordinance.

DEFENDANTS CLEARED.

I argue that it cannot for this reason. The learned Judge has himself cleared the defendants of of any kind at all. He has denied that this arrangement of January 24 was attended by any fraud of any kind or description.

Chief Justice: The words "intended to defraud" do not appear in the Ordinance.

Mr. Jenkins said he would quote authorities to show that this was the meaning of the Ordinance.

Continuing Mr. Jenkins said:
The title of the Ordinance was not explicit and was at least open to doubt.

The application was granted, no date being fixed for the hearing of the Appeal.

PETROL EXPLOSION ON HARBOUR MOTORBOAT

TWO BADLY INJURED

CRAFT BURNED OUT IN FIRE

EXCITEMENT AT TIFFIN HOUR

The waterfront near Blake Pier was the scene of great excitement at one o'clock this afternoon when a petrol tank of Walla Walla V, belonging to the Union Motorboat Company.

The coxswain and the engineer were both badly burned by the explosion, but both stayed by their craft for some little time in a courageous effort to extinguish the fire which involved the whole craft immediately after the first flash of flame.

The other members of the crew escaped with but trifling injuries.

SERIOUS BURNS

Foam fire extinguishers were brought to play upon the blaze both from inside the burning motorboat and from other motorboats lying in the vicinity but it was not until a fire appliance arrived from the Central Station that the outbreak was overcome. Much earlier on, both the coxswain and the engineer had been compelled to desert the boat. The coxswain who received serious burns in the explosion retired early as the fire spread. The engineer stayed (with great danger to himself) until it was obvious that the foam extinguishers were not having any useful effect owing to the extent of the blaze. He then was taken into another motorboat and immediately collapsed.

When admitted to the Government Civil Hospital, together with the coxswain, he was in a serious condition.

BURNED OUT SHELL

The third seaman of the Walla Walla V, relating the story of the affair, said he was standing nearby when the explosion occurred. He attempted to go on board to join the engineer and coxswain, but the heat was already too intense and was compelled to dive into the sea and swim to another boat.

Nothing but a burned out shell remained of the motorboat when it was towed to the Kowloon side of the harbour by the Water Police later this afternoon.

Crude oil was poured on the burns suffered by the two principal figures in the incident, affording some relief. The rapidity with which the fire involved the whole craft was due to the fact that the interior was liberally splashed with blazing spirit by the explosion.

EMPLOYMENT DRIVE IN AMERICA

Labour Leader Urges Still Shorter Hours

Washington, Aug. 30. Mr. Green, the Secretary of the Federation of Labour, declares that the drive to secure re-employment has spent itself. He says that the hours of work provided for in the industrial codes must be further shortened in order to spread employment further.—Reuter.

LAST EIGHT IN U.S. GOLF

MISS ENID WILSON THROUGH

ALMOST CERTAIN SEMI-FINALIST

New York, Aug. 30. Miss Enid Wilson won her second round match in the American Women's open golf championship with comfortable ease, finishing four up on the fifteen green.

The American favourites, Miss Helen Hicks, Miss Orcutt and Miss van Wie also passed in to the third round.

The quarter-finals are to be played to-morrow, but Miss Wilson will not come into collision with her chief rivals until the following day.

Miss Wilson is making a last bid to capture the American title. She has won the British title on several occasions and intended to

ANOTHER STEP IN THE PROCESS

EMISSARIES IN ROME

Rome, Aug. 30. Europe grows more and more like an armed camp and the situation is menacing, although there are no real signs of a spark unless it should occur on the Austro-German border.

The "armed camp" movement, exemplified by the defensive preparations of France and Belgium, moved a further step to-day with the arrival in Rome of Prince von Starhemberg and Herr Reichel.

They are from Vienna and are emissaries of the Chancellor, Dr. Dollfuss.

The Prince's visit is in connection with plans for the reorganisation of the Heimwehr on the lines of the Italian Fascist organisation.

MILITARY PLANS

It is learned that in addition to strengthening the Heimwehr (equivalent to the Territorials in Britain), Austria is contemplating using the whole of her "Peace Treaty" quota army of thirty thousand men, instead of the present 21,000.

It is planned to give recruits six months' training instead of a year, thus doubling the number of effectives.—Reuter.

Striking Predictions in Tokyo

Tokyo, Aug. 31. Japanese official circles predict important changes in the Nanking Government, including the resignation of Mr. Lin Sen, the Chairman of the National Council, the appointment of Mr. Wang Ching-wei, the Leftist leader, to this post and the appointment of Mr. T. V. Soong as President of the Executive Yuan, and General Huang Fu as Foreign Minister in succession to Lo Wen-kun.

It is expected that these important changes will be confirmed at the coming Kuomintang Plenary Session in November or December. General Huang Fu signed the Tangku armistice with the Japanese and rumours of his new appointment have caused favourable impression here.

JAPANESE TRADE COUNCIL

FORTY CHOSEN IN ADVISORY POSTS

CONTROL OF EXPORTS

Reuter Announces that the Foreign Office in Tokyo has chosen 40 persons to be members of the Trade Council, a newly established advisory organization which is charged with the task of investigating and reporting on the following subjects:

1.—Measures for balancing outgoing and incoming trade.

2.—Measures for balancing outgoing and incoming trade.

3.—New markets to be opened.

4.—Measures to safeguard Japan's markets in America, India and China on a reciprocal basis.

5.—New commercial treaties to be concluded on a reciprocal basis instead of the principle of most-favoured-nation treatment, and the seeking of compensatory agreements with countries with whom Japan has only one-way trade.

6.—Control of exports to preclude exchange dumping charges against Japanese merchandise.

7.—A survey of sources of supply of raw materials, such as raw cotton, wool, and oil, so that Japan may not be dependent upon one country alone for her supply.

The members of the Council, which will hold its first meeting early in September, will have their names formally gazetted next week.

BRITISH PLANES FOR SPAIN

TO BE USED FOR SURVEY WORK

London, Aug. 30. In a few days' time, four Fox Moth light cabin planes, designed and equipped for air surveying, will leave London and fly in formation to Spain, where they will be employed by the Spanish Government's Topographical Survey Department.—British Wireless.

WAR DEBTS AND DISARMAMENT

AMERICA ABANDONS OLD POLICY

DIPLOMATIC PRESSURE TO CEASE

NEW YORK, AUG. 30. THE UNITED STATES HAS ABANDONED THE POLICY OF MAKING WAR DEBT CONCESSIONS CONDITIONAL UPON THE DISARMAMENT OF EUROPE.

This important announcement, indicating a striking change in outlook, was made by Mr. Norman Davis to-day on sailing for Europe to attend the Disarmament Conference.

He declared: "I am certainly against linking debts and disarmament, for the simple reason that each is a tough enough nut to crack in itself. The linking of them merely hurts the prospects of a settlement of either problem.—Reuter."

MR. DAVIS'S MESSAGE TO EUROPE

New York, Aug. 30. Verbal messages from President Roosevelt to European governments are being conveyed, it is believed, by Mr. Norman Davis, the "roving Ambassador" of the United States.

Mr. Norman Davis sailed for Europe to-day aboard the liner Washington, long conversations with the President, dealing almost entirely, it is understood, with the problem of disarmament.

The only indication which Mr. Davis would give of the nature of his messages, was that President Roosevelt is extremely hopeful that Europe would find a road leading to disarmament.

Mr. Norman Davis's plans include provision for a stay of a few days in London, after which he will proceed to Geneva for the resumed discussions on disarmament.

Closely questioned by newspapermen before his departure, Mr. Davis declared emphatically that he does not intend to discuss either war debts or economic questions.—Reuter.

AMBASSADOR CRITIC

Mr. Hugh S. Gibson, former United States Ambassador to Belgium, expresses himself dubious as to the prospect of America receiving further war debt payments. He said that "unofficial ambassadors," spreading good will in European capitals, had educated the war debtors to believe "America does not look for payment."

The "unofficial ambassadors" Mr. Gibson described as prominent Americans travelling abroad without government portfolio. He said they "have been rash enough to say that we should cancel the debts."

"We can accept it with good grace," he said as to his view of the hopelessness of further payments, "but there is no reason to rejoice about it."

DISARMAMENT HOPES

The Ambassador was more optimistic about the prospects for reduction of armament. "Progress toward disarmament looks very slow to me," he said. "It has taken nine years to educate European governments and diplomats to the idea. But now, having met one another so often and having obtained a better knowledge of one another's psychology, they have reached a point where they are able to talk about disarmament as a standard principle for the settlement of the disarmament problem."

Mr. Henderson's exploratory conversations are understood to indicate that agreement is possible on such subjects as the standardization of armaments and the disarmament of the armed forces.

DRIVER UNHURT

A remarkable motoring accident occurred during a practice run for Saturday's Ulster Tourist Trophy race on the Ards circuit near Belfast to-day.

A small car, driven by Lieutenant Balmain, skidded violently when travelling at over seventy miles an hour and performed an amazing series of evolutions, turning four somersaults, finally landing upright on its wheels only 30 yards from where the skid began.

Lieut. Balmain was pinned in the driving seat and escaped unhurt, but his mechanic, named Dunkley, was thrown out of the car and killed.—British Wireless.

London, Aug. 30. The Three Choirs festivals, one of the oldest and most notable musical events in Britain, which is held in turn each year in the Cathedral of either Gloucester, Worcester or Hereford, will begin its 215th meeting in Hereford Cathedral on Sunday.

Sir Edward Elgar will conduct two of his Oratorios "Gerontius" and "The Kingdom" and among British composers contributing new works are Doctor Dyson and Mr. Martin Shaw.—British Wireless.

MRS. WILLS-MOODY'S FUTURE

San Francisco, Aug. 30.

Mrs. Wills-Moody, who has arrived here from Forest Hills, announced that she has no intention of giving up competitive tennis. Helen hopes to be able to compete in the National Singles championship in 1934.

She declared that she did not regret her action in defaulting to Miss Jacobs. She would have wanted Miss Jacobs to win the title had the position been reversed. Mrs. Wills-Moody said she was sorry that she had not been able to play in the National Singles championship in 1933.

For the LOVE of EVE by Lucy Walling

BEGIN HERE TO-DAY

EVE BAYLESS, pretty assistant to FAIRIE HAINES, advertising manager of Baby's department store, secretly marries DICK RADELL, a construction engineer. Dick wants Eve to give up working but she refuses. The same day Eve learns that she is to go to New York for the store and must leave that night. Dick takes her to the station but throughout the week in New York she has no word from him. The days there are busy. She meets THERON HESOP, who is much attracted by her and she visits HENRY PRENTISS, a former schoolmate who is playing the stock market and advises Eve to do the same.

Eve returns to Lake City at the end of a week. Back at the office she finds a new copy writer, MORA ALLEN, who appears to be a trouble-maker. MARYA VLEAD, fashion artist, and ARLENE SMITH, stenographer, are Eve's friends.

Dick and Eve spend several days at the fashionable Hotel Miramar, and then move into an apartment in an old-fashioned house. Eve works late at the office and arrives home to find Dick preparing dinner. They have a quarrel and Dick leaves.

CHAPTER IX

Dick was firm in his arguments for announcing their marriage. He repeated to Eve all the objections against secret marriages, including the embarrassment she would feel if her business friends should learn of it in a roundabout way and question her. Dick was honest and straightforward to a degree that Eve at times regarded as bluntness, but he had a certain dignity that nothing could shake and which Eve could not help but respect. And it gave her a deep sense of satisfaction to know that he commanded the respect of others.

Eve wanted each of the events of her life to stand out—to be remembered by her friends as different from the usual. Marrying customs, Dick assured her, had not come about by chance. Their purpose was to emphasize the importance of the marriage tie. To strengthen it and give it dignity. After repeated discussions and arguments Eve and Dick compromised. It was agreed that their relatives should be informed of their marriage but that, for the present, Eve need not announce it to her business associates. She took into her confidence a friend who was a promising young artist and asked her to design a combination Christmas card and wedding announcement. These were brought home by a very excited Eve one snowy Saturday early in December. She and Dick spent their spare time addressing, sealing and stamping the envelopes and then put them away to be mailed Christmas week. That settled, Dick was frankly relieved.

"Of course, as soon as our friends know of our marriage we will entertain," Eve began.

"That's all right," Dick answered, "so long as we know they're coming. Invite them for a definite time. Don't want a lot of people coming in on our privacy when we have something else to do."

Eve was silent for a while.

Then she ventured, hesitatingly. "Dick, do you think—well, you see this place is quite shabby looking. Oh, I know—it has atmosphere and all that; but, well, I'd hate to have some of the people I know find me living here."

Eve wilted a little before the question in Dick's clear, steady eyes. "What do you propose doing?" he asked.

"Oh, find another place." This a trifle defiantly.

Dick was silent. He was fond of picturesque old houses under ancient trees. Eve called his attention to the broken step, the dismal bathroom, the unattractive kitchen.

"I'll fix them up for your aesthetic friends," he promised. He was as good as his word. Delighted at his offer, Mrs. Brooks purchased paint and linoleum and left Dick, unhampered by directions, to transform the kitchen as Eve wished it. The walls he painted a creamy buff with deeper buff woodwork. Table and chairs he enameled in lavender. Eve hung apple-green satin over-drapes at the large, old-fashioned windows and the glass curtains were of cream net. They found an old screen in the attic and this Eve decorated effectively and used to conceal the stove and sink.

An old mahogany bookcase was moved in to be used as a cupboard. Eve brought home a canny lampshade with a gay lining. This cast a rosy glow over the room.

"I love it," she exclaimed when the transformation was complete. "It looks like a charming breakfast room instead of a kitchen."

The gloomy bathroom was changed into a place of pink and white and whiteness above the baseboard. The baseboard itself was enameled black to top the black and white block pattern of the linoleum floor. Eve used a flowered cretonne curtain at the window.

These were changes that would affect the rentability of the apartment and Dick seemed to enjoy making the improvement. "There!" he declared when he had finished the painting. "This is far more comfortable than a box-like place up three flights of stairs for the same price. We have room to turn around here."

Eve had worked out a programme which she followed with military precision. Dick co-operated with her to the best of his ability. There were times when his work made it impossible for him to reach home punctually and he had not time to do the marketing, start the dinner and change into fresh clothes. At such times Eve sat unsympathetic through the meal and answered his questions briefly. Dick was even-tampered through it all. The truth was that he worried over Eve. She seemed restless and often looked tired. True, they had been married only a few weeks—crowded, anxious weeks in spite of their happiness. He decided Eve must be working too hard at the office and told her so.

"It's not that at all!" she assured him. "But after working in an office with well-groomed business men all day do you expect me to look pleased and cheerful when I come home and find my husband wearing a blue flannel shirt—and to-night even boots? High boots! MY HUSBAND, of all people, not caring how he looks—!" Eve grew hysterical and rushed into the living room to throw herself on the day bed where she sobbed until quiet.

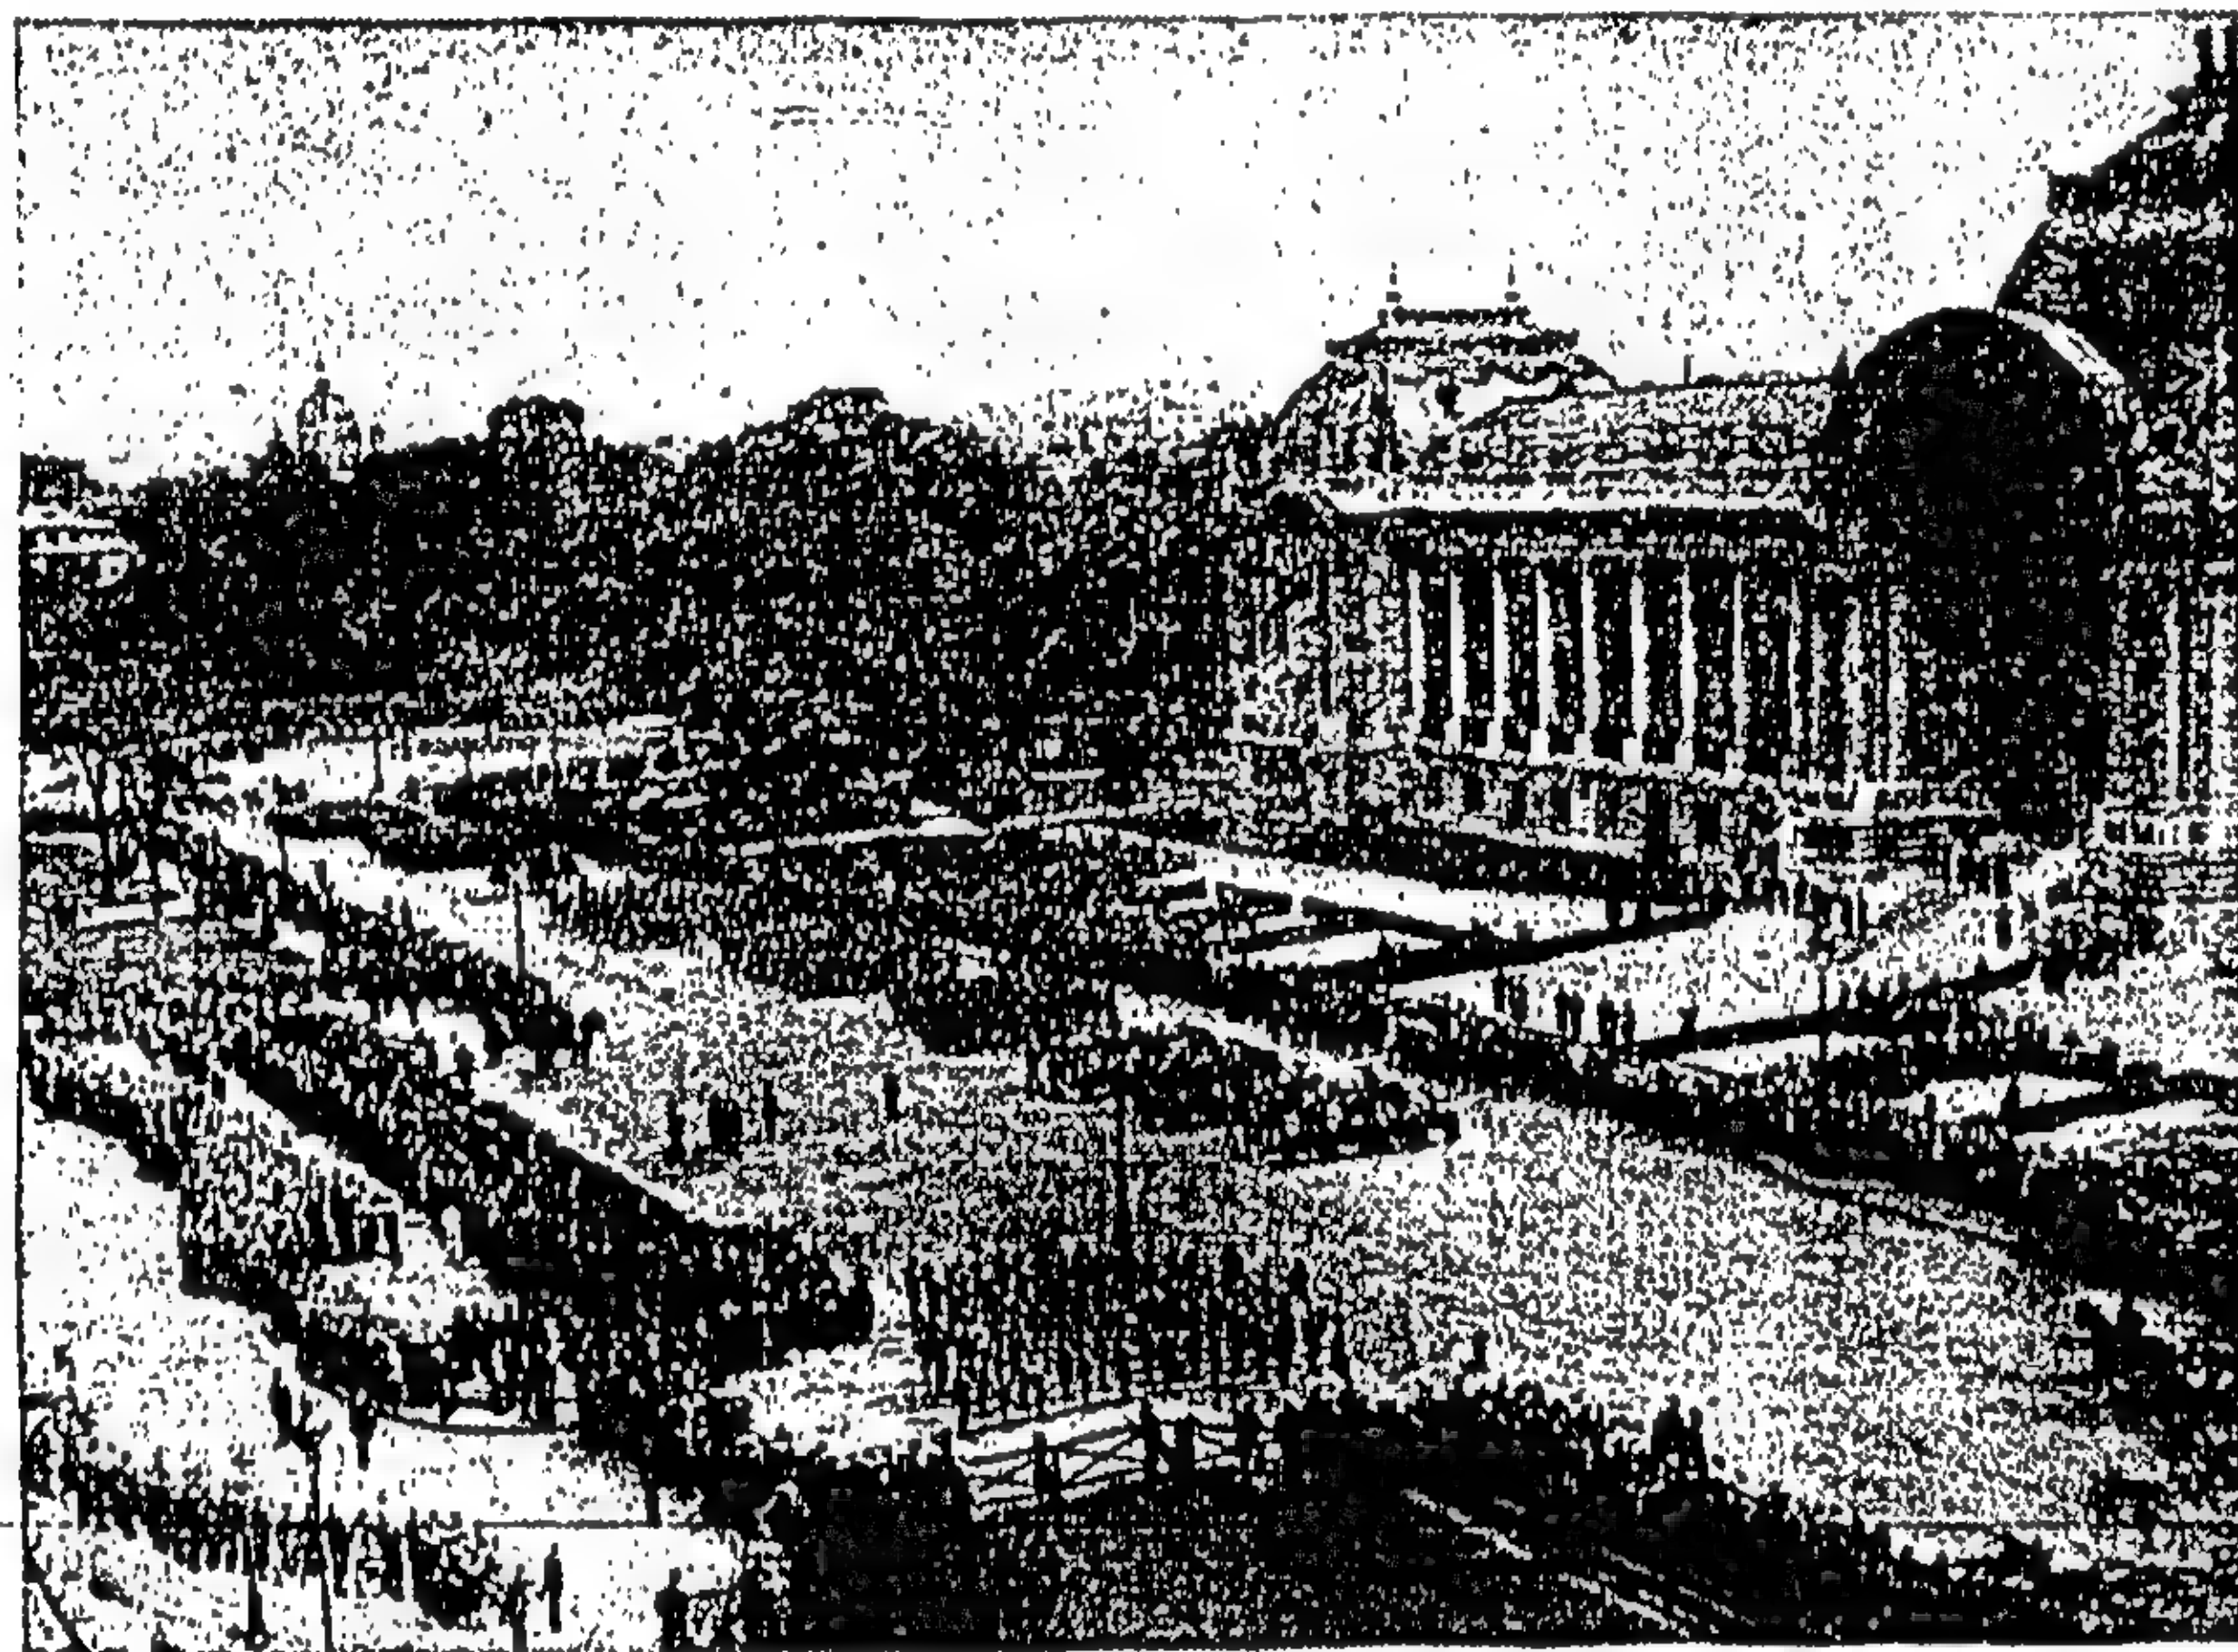

Dick, his face white, his lips set in a straight line, remained in the kitchen, staring straight ahead. Presently he arose, cleared the table and stacked and washed the dishes. He did not go near Eve.

After a while she arose, went into the bathroom and bathed her eyes. Then she filled a bowl with suds and washed out some stockings and lingerie too salty and fragile to trust to any hands but her own. She had intended to do this task in the morning, after Dick had left for the day's work. But she was in a perverse mood to-night.

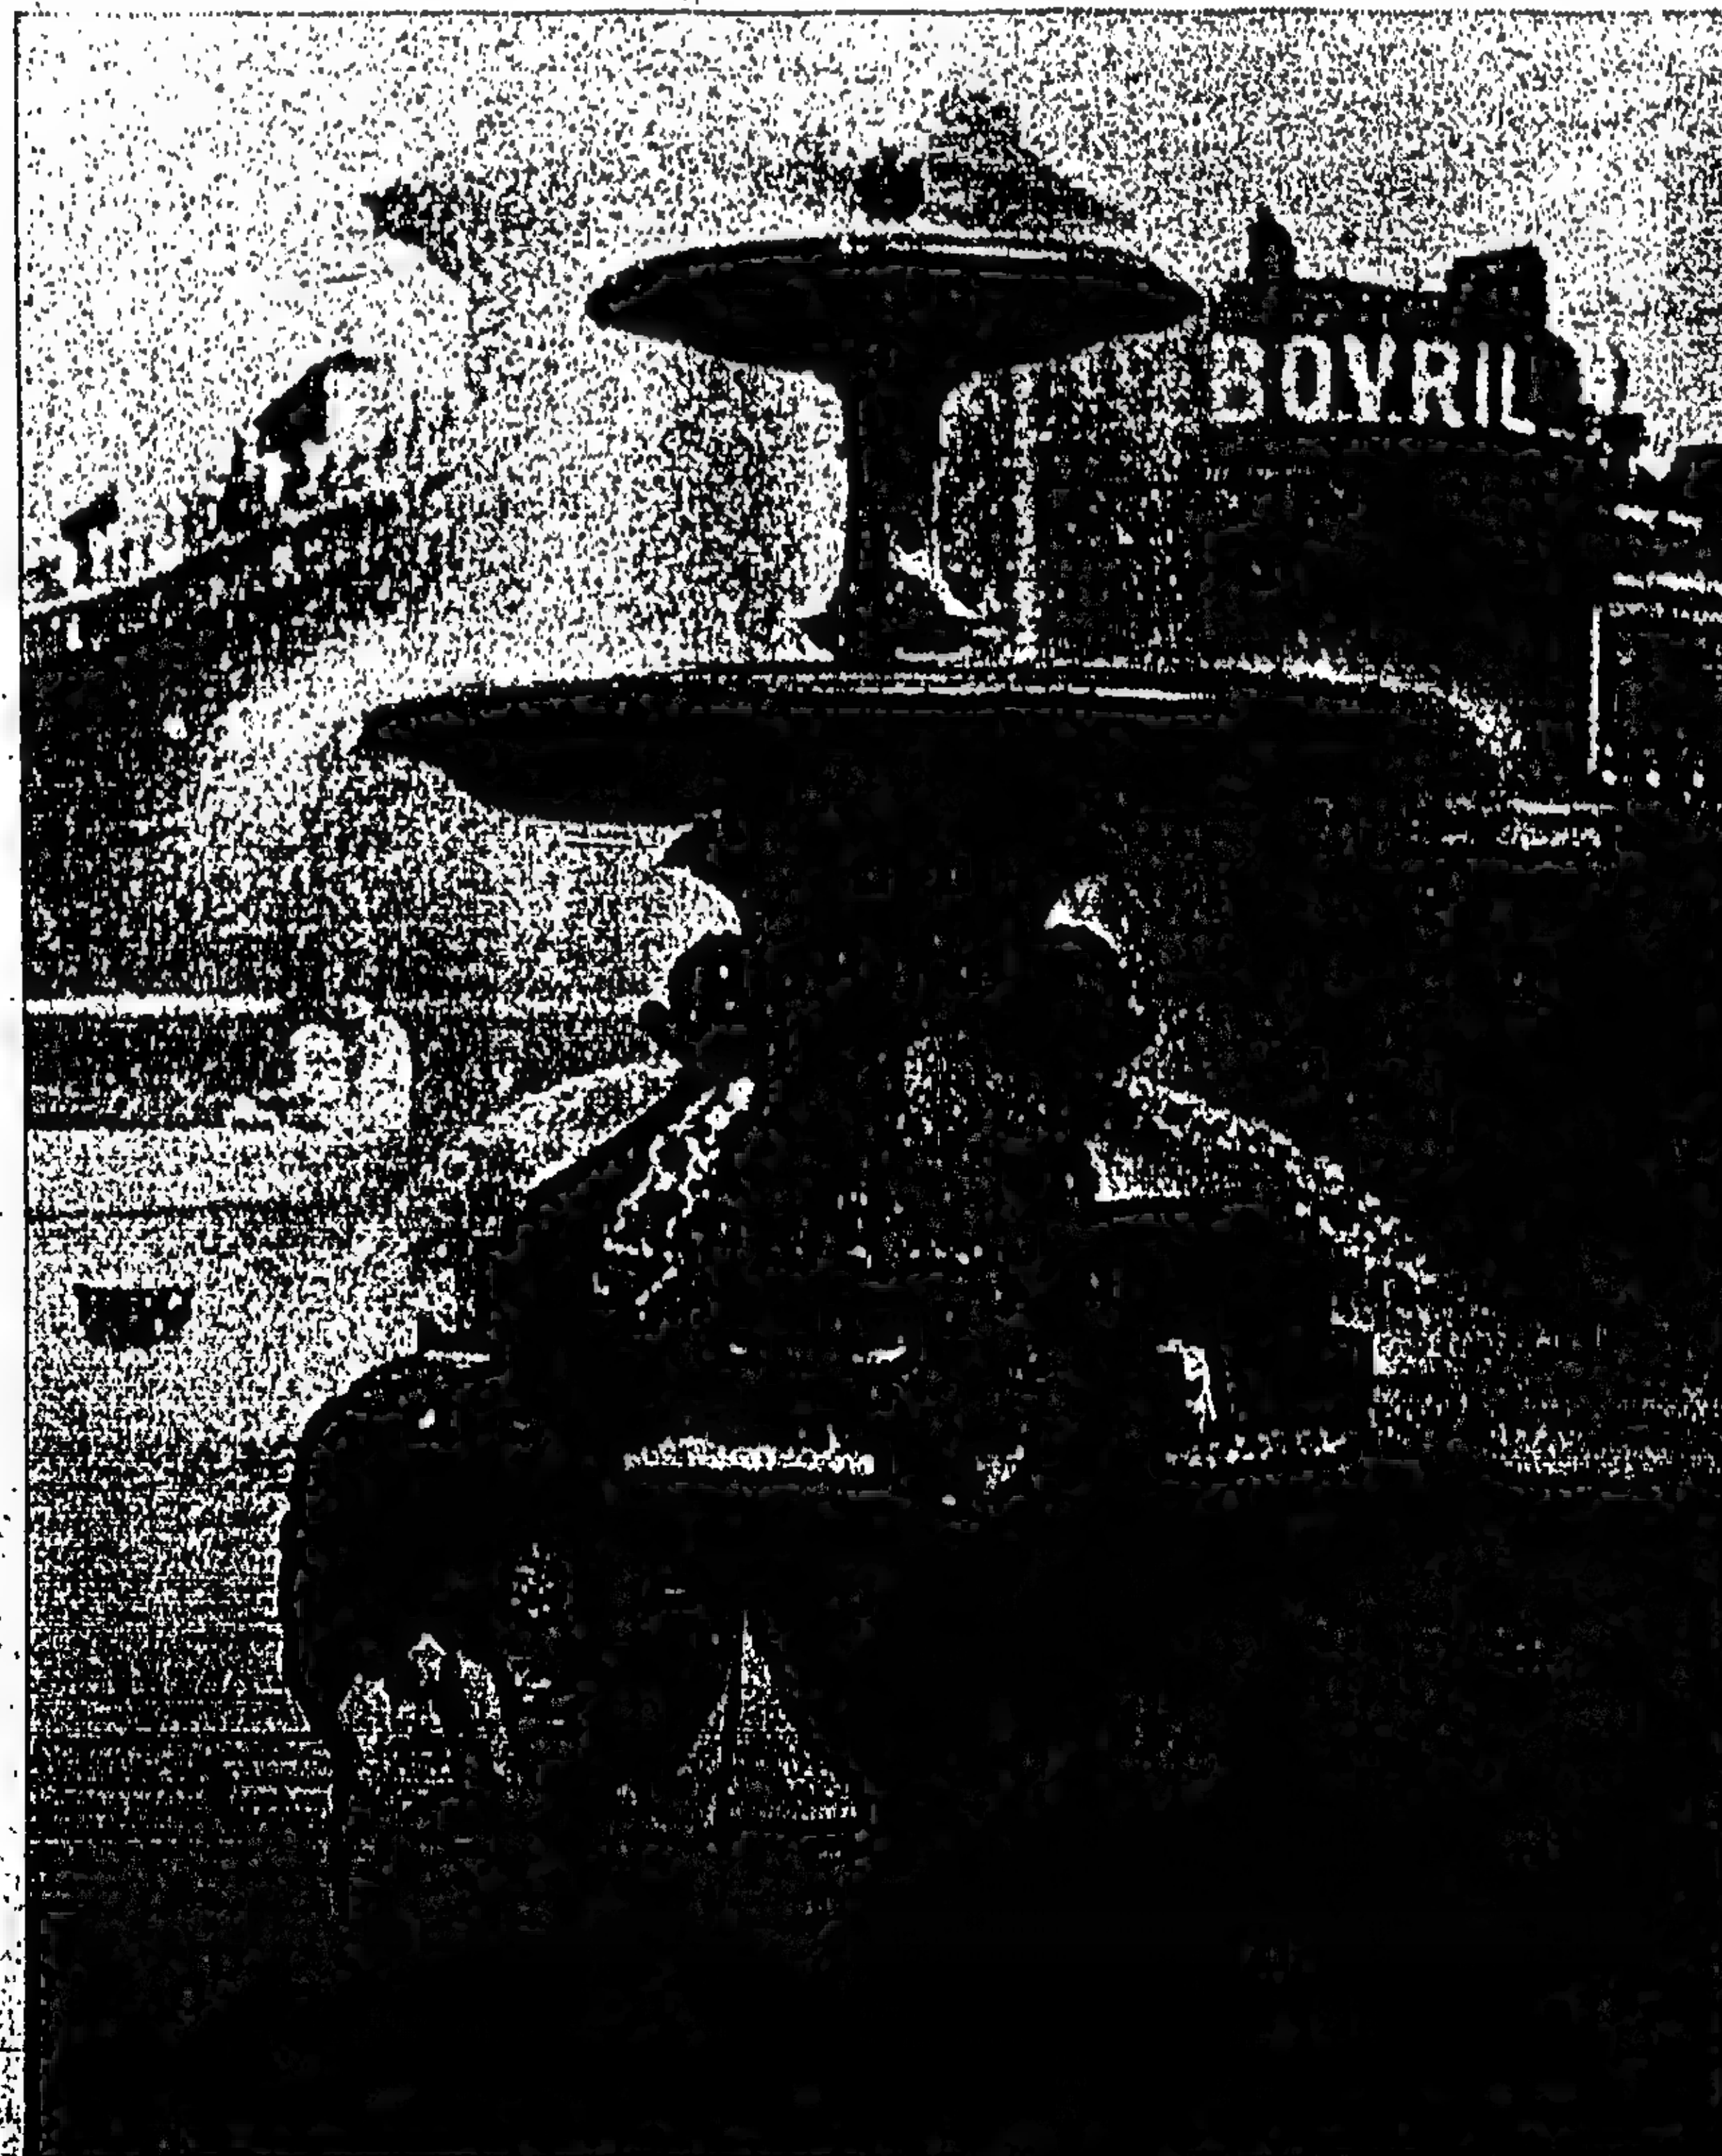

Dick went to bed. He heard Eve turn on the living room lamp and rustle the evening paper. Then he drifted into troubled sleep. Eve awakened him. "Dick," she said in a low voice, "I'm sorry."

"Nothing to be sorry for," he answered. He had had time to think things out—to make allowances.

"I was horrid to you," "Yes," were saying what you (Continued on Page 12.)

WEDDING BELLS.

FORMER HONGKONG MAN MARRIED AT HOME

Mr. T. E. Jones, formerly of the staff of Messrs. Lane, Crawford, Ltd., Hongkong, was married in London on August 5. The wedding took place at All Saints Church, Upper Norwood, and was attended by a number of former Hongkong residents. The bride, Miss Betty Rhodes, the charming elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. W. Rhodes, of 273 Whitehorse Lane, South Norwood (Elli.), was attended by two bridesmaids, Misses M. Jones and M. Jones, and two flower girls, Misses M. Jones and M. Jones. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. H. E. Sexton, and the wedding was a most successful one. The bride and groom left for their honeymoon in Belgium. Their future home will be at Malden, Kent, where Mr. Jones is the South Coast representative of the well-known firm of Messrs. Harris, Lohr, Ltd., of London. Mr. Jones is 35 years of age, and has been married for three years. He has one son, Mr. T. E. Jones, Jr., who is now at school in Hongkong. The bride is 28 years of age, and has been married for three years. She has one daughter, Miss Betty Rhodes, who is now at school in Hongkong. The wedding was a most successful one, and the bride and groom left for their honeymoon in Belgium. Their future home will be at Malden, Kent, where Mr. Jones is the South Coast representative of the well-known firm of Messrs. Harris, Lohr, Ltd., of London.

at the service which was conducted by the Rev. H. E. Sexton. Among the many friends at the church and at the reception at Whitehorse Lane was Mr. C. J. Tacchi, the efficient Hon. Secretary of the Hongkong Lawn Bowls Association. Later in the day Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Jones left for their honeymoon in Belgium. Their future home will be at Malden, Kent, where Mr. Jones is the South Coast representative of the well-known firm of Messrs. Harris, Lohr, Ltd., of London. SOONG HEADS RELIEF

APPOINTED CHAIRMAN OF FLOOD COMMISSION

Nanking, Aug. 30. The Central Political Council to-day appointed Mr. T. V. Soong Chairman of the Yellow River Flood Relief Commission, the formation of which was decided upon by the Executive Yuan yesterday. The new Commission has tentatively allotted the sum of $1,000,000 for necessary expenses. According to a message from Tsinan, the Yellow River in Shantung is falling, in spite of heavy rainfall. The level at Lokow dropped 2.7 inches yesterday, and the troops engaged in repairing the dykes in that region have been ordered to return to their garrison areas, as the danger there is considered past.—Reuters.

CINEMA SCREENINGS

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRES

In "Cynara," the Ronald Colman picture at the King's Theatre to-day the Master of Ceremonies at an English village function is called upon to introduce his committee to welcome James Warlock played by Colman.

"His Grace, the Marquis of Annandale," he announced, reading the line from the script at one of the first rehearsals.

A member of Samuel Goldwyn's staff heard the introduction. It sounded like a genuine name, not a movie introduction. He quickly looked it up.

There was a genuine Marquis of Annandale!

The sleuth hurried to tell Director King Vidor of his discovery, and in the interests of censorship complications, in England, to beg him to delete it, or to change it to a fictitious name.

Vidor was amused. He pointed out the player concerned, a recruit from the Central Casting Office, as an English character player.

"He is the Marquis of Annandale. He voluntarily offered the use of his own family name, which, for the purpose, was far more impressive than any that we could invent," Vidor explained.

So the line stayed.

"Made on Broadway" Described as a glittering panorama of New York life from Battery Park to Harlem, "Made on Broadway" comes on Sunday to the Queen's Theatre with Robert Montgomery and Sally Eilers, two of the screen's most popular younger players, co-starred for the first time.

Montgomery is said to have another high-speed comedy role as Jeff Bidwell, super-fixer, "wise guy" and debonair gambler who hoodwinks society and reaps a harvest on Broadway. Miss Eilers undergoes an interesting character development as the struggling cafe waitress who is rescued from a watery grave by Montgomery and who subsequently becomes one of Manhattan's most pampered playgirls.

The unusually strong cast also features Madge Evans as the ex-wife who tries to help Montgomery develop a course of action during his mad career as a high-pressure public relation's expert, and the supporting players include the comic Eugene Pallette, C. Henry Gordon, Jean Parker, Ivan Lebedeff, David Newell, Vince Barnett and Joseph Cawthorn.

"Made on Broadway" is based on the story, "Public Relations," written by Courtenay Tarrett, one of New York's newspapermen who witnessed many "inside" scenes during his years of metropolitan reporting in one of the city's most colourful administrations. Report is that actual incidents from his own experience were worked into the picture with persons and places thinly disguised under fictitious names.

"Laughter in Hell" The right kind of woman is the greatest gift of life, but the wrong kind makes "Laughter in Hell"—points out Universal's powerful drama of that name which is now playing at the Central Theatre. It is impressive with its intensely human theme and characterization.

Laid in a mining town in the South at the close of the 19th Century, the film traces the youth of a young Irishman who marries a faithless girl and finds his life blasted when he discovers her in the arms of his enemy since childhood. His passionate crime sends him to the Hell of a prison camp whose foreman is the brother of the man he has killed. Interest is heightened when the prisoner makes a break for life, and his efforts to evade the reacher of the law provide a tense film with unlimited suspense.

A fascinating and entirely different background lends the film a unique atmosphere. The action was filmed for the most part in an old section of California which remained virtually unchanged since the days of its settlement and the odd fashions of the "Nineties" add the picturesque mood the film boasts.

"Pat O'Brien is authentically cast in "Laughter in Hell" as the young Irishman who pays for his passions

PRISON SENTENCES.

THREE CHINESE GIVEN STIFF TERMS

Calcutta, Aug. 30. Three Chinese, charged following disturbances on July 22, were sentenced to-day to six years' rigorous imprisonment. The three prisoners were charged under the Terrorist Outrages Suppression Act.—Reuters.

In the fullest measure, Merna Kennedy gives a bewitching performance as the faithless wife who finds her flirtation lead to tragedy. Gloria Stuart, Berton Churchill, Tom Brown and other screen players included.

"Best of Enemies" Here's to every-body's happiness! Here's a round of joy, romance and gaiety for happy days are really here again!

"Best of Enemies", the new romantic comedy from Fox comes to the King's Theatre next Sunday, for a joyous and timely engagement. It's a story that brims with youthful romance—overflowing with frothy frivolity—packing a kick every body will enjoy—plus a cast that sets the caffeine, turbulent love of to-day against the amusing prejudices and restrained loyalties of yesterday.

Buddy Rogers, in the leading masculine role, comes back to the screen—more sophisticated than ever before. He's learned about women, and women will learn things from him. Marian Nixon plays opposite him—sweeter, more charming, more delightful than you've ever seen her. Others in the scintillating cast are Frank Morgan, Joseph Cawthorn, Grete Nissen, Arno Frey, William Lawrence and Anders Van Huden.

"The Devil is Driving"

Large scale, organized automobiles stealing, latest of the rackets to pay a dividend to the underworld, forms the basis of the plot of "The Devil is Driving", commencing to-day at the Queen's Theatre. Edmund Lowe, Wynne Gibson, James Gleason, Lois Wilson, Dickie Moore and Allan Dinehart head the cast.

The modus operandi of the auto-stealing gangs—the manner in which they pick up cars, smuggle them to safety, change their features so that they cannot be recognized, and dispose of them, are revealed for the first time in the picture. Against this exciting background moves the equally exciting story of a good-natured, wise-cracking mechanic who breaks up the gang after his nephew and his brother-in-law have been made its innocent victims. His romance with an equally good-natured, equally smart-aleck night club hostess, runs through the picture.

STREET SLEEPERS AND THE LIKE

If there is one thing more discouraging than preaching social reform in this Colony it must be the response to active measures in the social welfare, judging by the experience met with as an almost invariable rule. A small band of enthusiasts can always be found to promote any good cause, but the public, even if stirred to cursory interest, generally relapses into complete apathy—and another excellent effort fades in futility. The Rev. N. V. Halward is now endeavouring to interest the community in a splendid scheme, insofar as it touches upon the main social problems of Hongkong, for providing shelter for street sleepers during the winter months. Certain features of the programme outlined at the Rotary tiffin might be the subject of criticism, but the motive is good and the need great. Several organisations are giving the project moral and financial support and it starts in circumstances more favourable than most ventures of a similar kind. While it deals with only one of the more obvious results of extreme poverty among a large section of the population, it is at least a start and may ultimately lead to progress in other directions. There is, however, one point which will occur to many, even among those keenest to lend aid in social work, namely, what contribution the Government intends to make. The task of improving the condition of society, raising the standard of living and, therefore, of health, is not one which finally rests with public-spirited individuals and private charity. It is the responsibility of government. This view has never yet been formally accepted by the Hongkong Government, hence the need for community efforts to alleviate the lot of unfortunate street sleepers. But we doubt if our administration of so-called benevolent autocracy can permanently evade the true functions of modern government, as expressed in the phrase, care for the welfare of every citizen. For this reason, we feel that far greater achievement is possible, in the long run, by concentrating on agitation for a real contribution by government to social services than by spasmodic attempts by Church organisations, Rotary Clubs and the like to meet particular needs. There are, aspects of life in Hongkong far more distressing than the fate of those compelled to sleep in the streets. Some who are apparently able to keep a roof over their heads are worse off, physically and morally, than those who take shelter in doorways at night. But as we approach the closing of the year, we

NOTES OF THE DAY

CATHEDRAL DANGER

The appeal launched by St. John's Cathedral will, we feel sure, meet with a ready response. After a policy of careful finance over the last few years, the Trustees had just begun to see a possibility of stability when along came the white ant invasion. Restoration will cost a sum in the vicinity of $5,000 and unless public assistance is forthcoming, the Cathedral authorities will be in a very precarious position.

MORE THAN A HOPE

From many quarters of the globe have come expressions of definite opinion on the part of youth with regard to war. In the main, the consensus is that under any circumstances war is a mistake—unintelligent, futile, horrible. Perhaps the most encouraging feature in this voice of the young is that its verdict is one of conviction. It is not the result of emotionalism but of reasoning. The educational efforts of various international organisations, which often in the last fifteen years seemed but to mark time, are now bearing fruit. The younger generation not only regards international cooperation as the normal method of conducting affairs, but it recognizes that isolation and hyper-nationalism are inimical to progress.

SHANGHAI ISSUE

The obstruction which is being offered in Shanghai to the proposed conference of the Anti-War Congress appears to derive from people who refuse to recognise the strength of this movement. A good deal has been heard of subversive tendencies and so on, but the opposition seems largely to be based upon prejudice. There seems no really good reason why permission for the conference should be refused. The authorities can easily put an end to the sessions if the delegates overstep the mark. The truth, of course, is that Shanghai does not fear anything from Lord Marley or any other of the foreign delegates to the Conference. If there is any cause for anxiety and alarm, it lies with elements already active in China, whose work underground is likely to be infinitely more dangerous than a speech or two at a conference intended solely to foster the spirit of antipathy to war.

OUR AFFLUENT TREASURY

Government has indicated its intention of embarking upon fresh public works schemes and in so doing has anticipated public feeling that the Colony's credit balance is unusually and unnecessarily large. The latest statement issued shows that the Colony's Exchequer has a surplus over $16,000,000, the largest since the halcyon days of 1924. There can be two explanations for this apparently happy state of affairs. Either the Colony is over-taxed or the Government is not expending enough. There are countless ways in which part of the $16,000,000 in excess of our cautious Treasurer's desired minimum balance, could be wisely expended; and there are many ways in which relief could be given to the taxpayer. It seems rather anomalous that the Colonial Treasury should be in its most affluent condition while business in the Colony is acutely depressed.

ANSCHLUSS

France is acting vigorously in support of its declaration that under no circumstances will it permit the Anschluss—the union of Germany and Austria which is prohibited by the treaties. But in diplomacy, it must always be remembered that changing conditions may produce revolutions of thought; and the case of the Anschluss, it is obvious that Italy has become the pivot of European policy. While France and Germany remain in opposition, it was apparent that Italy must possess a deciding voice. If Italy had ranged itself with Germany, French dominance would simply disappear and Anschluss would be certain. Fortunately, perhaps, Italy has seen eye to eye with France in this matter and German aspirations are checked.

ENGLAND'S LOST PRESTIGE

YOUTH'S DEMAND FOR ITS RECOVERY

By ANDREW SOUTAR

HERE is a youth! Clean-cut, fresh from school, vigorous, intelligent and ambitious; he stands for all that we mean when we speak of the English race.

He was born in 1914—that year, as the historian may write, when judgment seemed to have fled to brutish beasts and men had lost their reason. This youth, as a sucking, absorbed from his mother that pride of "England" made of the word "England" a synonym for virility, honour, dignity and justice. He was yet a babe in arms when the prestige of the English was being lifted to its zenith by sacrifices made in every field of war.

What of his position to-day? He is standing at the school-house door. He wants to go out into the world and help rebuild the shattered fabric. But where is the national prestige of Yesterday? By whom has it been jeopardised? Whose impish humour would have him believe that patriotic fervour is merely sentiment based on a liking for martial music? He wants a job. He wants to go from beneath the roof-tree to those other parts of the world where Britons have gone before him. His dilemma is not without tragedy. Does it mean nothing to you?

It is no new phase of life that here, in England, there should be few openings for the exercise of his hands and head. His forebears countered the handicap by going abroad; why shouldn't he go, with every prospect of filling a glorious niche in history? Why shouldn't his dreams be as golden as those of his immediate ancestors without being deemed fantastic? Isn't the right to go people's heritage? The heritage that came down the years from the early pioneers? He is not going into exile because of some offending; nor does he seek sanctuary among strangers because his own people doubt his worth. He wants to feel that somewhere out yonder—the Big Chance awaits him. Exile?

"Never was so little, never was so long, and the palm-trees an English flag was flown."

If he cannot materialise the dreams, hasn't he the right to ask who has dissipated the heritage? Let's put our heads together on behalf of the young Briton. Something must be done for him, even though it be no more than the stiffening of his resolution. Those who appear to be indifferent to the warping of Empire bonds must be shown the danger to the house as a whole if its prestige is impaired. There was a time when the word "Briton" acted as a talisman from China to Peru, from the Lizard to the Southern Cross. One had only to utter a word and the English tongue compelled respect, even homage. A youth went out into the lone places, and if he didn't find a material fortune he discovered that which was greater—men honoured and envied him for his nationality. The Chinese merchant accepted his word as his bond; the coolies jabbared his praises on the wharves of Shanghai and the beach of Kowloon.

They said of him, "One piece of mouth, one piece of tongue." They could depend on his assurance; they believed him to be just—stern, maybe, but just. On the rubber plantations of Malay he ruled by right of his birth and breeding; in the tropics he might fume and sweat, but courage was there; he imparted it to those who fumed and sweated with him. Never a foreign port where he wasn't welcome. The Japanese chose him to command their ships when they were learning the rudiments of navigation: old British pilots still linger on the rugged volcanic slope of Nagasaki at the entrance to the Inland Sea. Far north, the Laplander agreed his geniality and justness; South, the Kaffir was proud to serve.

Who could rightly appraise the value of such a heritage? The young Briton himself was not so spendthrift of pride that he lightly dissipated it. If he felt the urge to get rich quickly at the expense of the natives' good opinion of him, it was overcome by the reflection that he was sullying the prestige of the Flag.

If the conscience of the professional politician is calm in face of the altered conditions prevailing to-day, where are we to look for the disturbing factor? The source of the early pioneer's strength and dignity was in Westminster. He knew that he had behind him the full weight and influence of a governing body that set country before self. He might encounter a multitude of difficulties, and be called on to yield up life itself, but there was always the spur that "Somebody at home would want to know the reason why." He had no need to ingratiate himself with lesser minds; he could inspire confidence without carrying either an olive branch or a dog-whip in his hand.

What of the position to-day? To be blind to a loss doesn't make it a gain. To restore the balance, the logical thing to do is to trace the fault to its origin and rebuild. There is a vast army of high-spirited youths in this country eager to take the flag into the far corners of the earth. They seek to go as ambassadors of trade and representatives of the country to which they owe allegiance. Their Public School training has fitted them for even greater tasks and triumphs than awaited their ancestors, but they are handicapped by the changed conditions at the base. Vacillation is a flaw in national character that brings dignity to the ground with a run. Timidity in a leader creeps with the breath of plague through the ranks. "What man is there that is fearful and faint-hearted? Let him go and return unto his house, lest his brethren's heart faints as well as his heart."

There is scope in the outer world for this army of young Britons, but are they to be denied the inestimable advantage that was granted their forefathers?—the advantage of calling themselves British, and all that expression used to mean? There is (Continued on Page 2.)

The Very Idea!

AUTUMN FASHIONS

By Eddie "Abigail" Kelly

EDWARD Kelly announces that, commencing Wednesday next, he is severing his connexion with the Telegraph. He has decided to go into business.

At no time like the present, says Mr. Kelly, does business want capable men at the helm. Which is why he has decided to go into the drapery business.

HERE'S made in your eye.

Chic men are coming into their own this winter. Which does not mean that their relations are dying, but simply that we've decided to bring out the new Winter Fashions for men.

From now on we are going to advocate the cult of beauty without the beast. We have stepped into the ranks of Hongkong's B.Y.T.s.

This winter, for instance, the eye-brows will be worn right across the face for warmth and will terminate at each end in a question mark.

Eyelashes will be braided a la mode, while tinted glasses, especially since the introduction of Hongkong beer, will be all the rage.

In order to see through the tints, the glasses should be worn on the tip of the nose, so that the wearer can see over them.

This will be easy, as noses will be tipped this winter. "Abigail" has already received many anxious enquiries from mothers on the subject of nose-tipping.

The usual way is to rear the baby on the Peak, but if this is too expensive, a clothes peg attached to the nose, and tied round the neck with a piece of string will be found just as effective.

Moustaches will be distinctly taboo, and all superfluous facial hairs should be removed with Veet. Razors must be avoided as they roughen the complexion.

Man's crowning glory will be parted into three sections, except in the case of bald-headed men who will have one parting and a lot of regrets.

Beauty spots are coming into prominence again, and the exchange rate on moles has risen owing to the increased demand.

Even warts can be passed off at a pinch.

Finally, it is imperative that we all wear a dainty little card on the left button-hole, bearing the word "MALE" in gold, embroidered lettering.

Should this prove insufficient, it will be necessary to call a policeman.

BUSINESS FIRST

"We went into a shop the other day.

"We want to buy a little present for our wife," we said to the girl, in accents sweet and low.

"Could I interest you in a bathing suit?" she asked.

"You could, girlie," we said, "But let's fix up about the present first."

Now why did she slap our face?

ANSWERS TO CO-RE'S

Yesterday, we had a Spring Cleaning at our desk in the office. After we'd skimmed through the thousands of chits, final notices, photographs from lady admirers and congratulatory messages from our Public we discovered the following letters that required attention:

Dear Edward,—Could you give me some information on the proposed Divorce laws for Hongkong. My wife and I often have our neighbours in for a friendly game of bridge, but my wife will persist in trumping my Ace. If the new divorce laws do not cover this crime, what other course can I take to break her off this vile habit.—Cuthbert Cuthbertson.

Dear Cuth.—Bury her with simple honours.—Eddie.

Dear Mr. Kelly,—The other day I commenced knitting a jumper for the winter. But, somehow, it doesn't seem to be coming out right. I have been thinking it put one side and mended the other. What would you call that?

A FINE NEW BUILDING AT STANLEY

MARYKNOLL FATHERS' PROJECT

CHINESE MOTIF IN DESIGN

On a hill at Stanley, rising to over 200 feet above the Bay, work was recently started on the site for the new sanatorium for the Maryknoll Fathers, youngest of the Missions in Hongkong.

Containing many features that are unusual, the new building when completed within less than a year, will constitute one of the most impressive landmarks on the south side of the Colony.

Artistic employment of the well-known Chinese ornamental roofing will be one of the chief features in a happy blending of Western and Chinese architecture, a lead for which was given by the Theological College of the Jesuit Fathers at Aberdeen.

CHINESE MOTIF.

The Chinese motif in the new Sanatorium will be repeated with Moon Gates, green glazed "bamboos," and other incidentals conducing to the restfulness of the surroundings.

When completed, the building will have cost $240,000, in addition to the cost of the grounds of which only one-fifth will be occupied.

The chief constructional details are a main block and wings at right angles to it and which are to be the Chapel and Library of the Fathers. A central terrace and entrance pavilion between these two wings will have an enclosed, with the outer walls, two inner Courtyards, to be laid out as pleasure gardens.

CHAPEL AND LIBRARY.

The main block will be of four floors including the ground floor. As is indicated in the illustration, the Chapel and Library wings will rise only to the level of the first floor. The Chapel will have a crypt in the lower ground floor.

The roofs of the four buildings including the imposing entrance pavilion will be of green glazed tiles with highly ornamental ridges.

Two stone vases, guarding the approach to the entrance pavilion, will further set off the symmetry of the ensemble. The Moon Gates under the central terrace walk are other delightful details to be noted.

NORTHERN ASPECT.

The block measures 160 feet across and 117 feet deep, and will have a northern aspect.

Reinforced concrete will be chiefly employed, but granite will also be largely drawn upon for the lower floors and ornamental details. The external walls to the ground floors of the main block, and the ground floors of the Chapel and Library blocks will be of hammer dressed facing granite.

The same material will be also employed for the entrance pavilion, the garden steps, walls, and the piers to the main block supporting the terrace from the entrance pavilion; as well as the landing to garden steps.

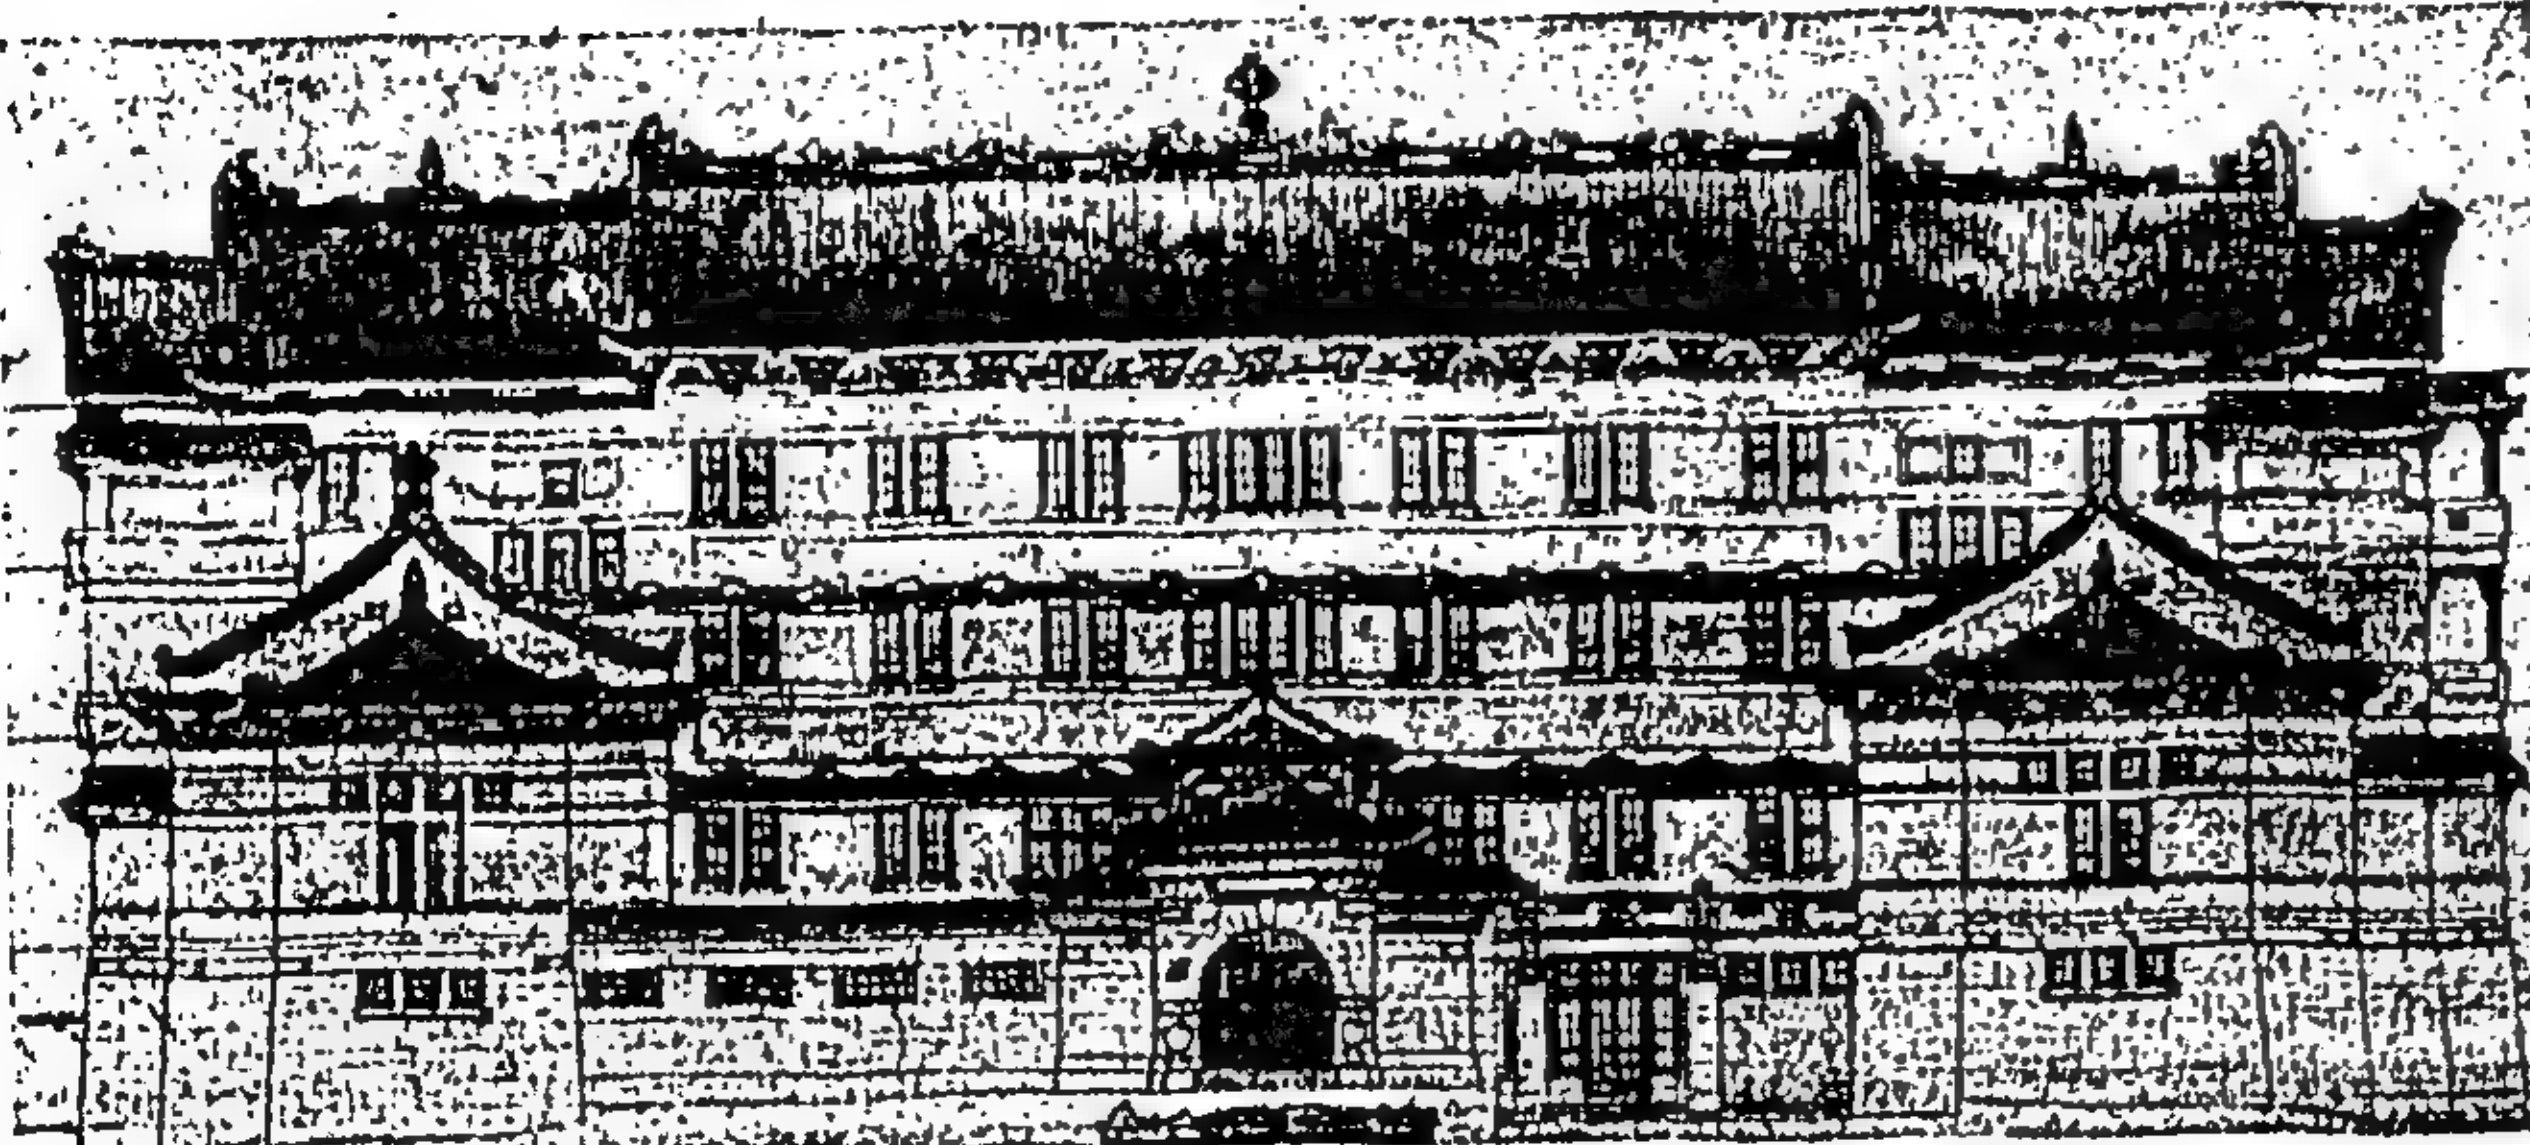

"CRAZY" PAVING.

The two vases to the entrance pavilion and the rims of the two Moon Gates under the terrace will be executed in fine, punched granite, while the pathways around the turfed plots in the Courts will be laid out in granite random paving.

The external walls of the main block, from the granite wall to the lower story, up to the cornice, as well as the gables, and the pediments of the main, chapel and Library blocks are to be faced: in the case of 14 inch thick walls with bricks, and in the case of 9 inch thick walls with tiles to match the bricks in colour and shape.

ROYAL BIRTHDAY NETHERLANDS CONSUL HOLDS RECEPTION

On the occasion of the birthday of Her Majesty the Queen of the Netherlands, a reception was held at the residence of the Consul General, Mr. M. J. Quist, this morning.

The Toast of His Majesty the King was proposed by the Consul General for the Netherlands, and His Excellency Major General O. C. Borrett, C.B., C.M.G., C.B.E., D.S.O., General Officer Commanding the British Troops in China, proposed the Toast of Her Majesty the Queen of the Netherlands.

Among those present at the reception were His Excellency Major General Borrett, and his A.D.C., Captain Mears, Rt. Rev. R. O. Hall, Bishop of Victoria, His Honour Justice J. R. Wood, Captain Walker (representing His Excellency the Governor), Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Jenkins, Consul General for the United States, Mr. M. Asino, Consul General for Japan, Mr. Hayat, Consul General for Belgium, Mr. Bonachen, Consul General for Peru, Mr. de La Prade, Consul General for France, Mr. Gipperich, Consul General for Germany, Comm. A. Bianconi, Consul General for Italy, Mr. P. Smart, Consul for Chile, Commodore E. Elliott, O.B.E., Mrs. D. W. Tratman, Hon. Mr. A. E. Wood, Hon. Mr. E. D. C. Wolfe, Mr. T. E. Lacey, Mr. P. V. Botelho, Acting Consul for Portugal, Mr. P. Jacks, Mr. Li Tsun-fun, Secretary to the Netherlands Consulate, Mr. and Mrs. Middelburg, Mr. and Mrs. Lafleur, Mr. Lapelle, Mr. J. A. Smart, Consul for Chile, Mr. Fraser, Mr. Vanderleij, Mr. Morhaus, Mr. Vetreich, Mr. and Mrs. Lebert, Mr. and Mrs. de Josselin, Mr. and Mrs. Schreuder, Mr. and Mrs. Van Seveder, Mr. Bilkvist, and Mr. de Broekort.

SWEEPING VIEW.

The site on which the "Rest House," as it is termed, will stand, commands a sweeping view of the Bay with the ancient Chinese village at the foot and modern buildings on the hills across. The side of the hill from the Bay is covered with dense foliage, and an old path now being used by the builders as an approach to the site, can with little additional work be converted into a charming walk.

In the main block some 33 bedrooms will be laid out in the upper floors, while in the ground and lower ground floors there will be a number of common, social, and other rooms in addition to the usual offices and quarters for the staff and servants.

As its name indicates, the place will be used as a Rest House for missionaries from the interior. Messrs. Little, Adams and Wood, York Building, are the Architects; and Messrs. Cheong Hing Co., 25 Gilman Street, are the contractors.

A SKETCH PLAN NECESSARY

VITAL IN CERTAIN OPIUM CASES

ANOTHER TENANT SUMMONS

A Chinese woman, the principal tenant of the second floor of 3, Pak Chi Lane, was convicted and fined $250 or three months by Mr. Wynne-Jones in the Central Police Court this morning, on a charge of allowing the floor to be used as an opium den.

A fine of $50 or one month, was imposed on the divan keeper, but a charge of the possession of a quantity of illicit opium was withdrawn. The prosecuting police officer stated that the amount of opium was insufficient for the Analyst to make an examination.

The woman denied the charge. Detective-Sub-Inspector O'Donovan said that with a Police party he went to the house last night. After some questioning the woman admitted being the principal tenant and paid $30 rent. She produced the rent receipt which was made out in her name. She had lived there for the past three years.

He then took her to the rear part of the floor and showed her the divan. She stated that the first defendant was in charge of it and paid her $15 rent. The divan was the only means of access to the kitchen on the common floor. At the request of the magistrate witness drew a sketch plan of the floor.

His Worship convicted and said he would impose his usual penalty of $250 or three months. Revenue Officer Grimmeritt—We are not asking for more in these cases.

ESSENTIAL EVIDENCE.

The magistrate—I think I must ask you all in these cases of so-called principal tenants to be in a position to produce a plan of the place. You must be prepared to draw a sketch plan of the floor on the spot. I want you to remember that the essential part of the case is the means of access to the divan. If I have evidence before me that a common passage is the only access to the divan, and the principal tenant lives on the floor, it shows she has control of the place, and I will always convict.

R. O. Grimmeritt—Your Worship still wants the wording "principal tenant" to be used? Mr. Fraser, Assistant Attorney General, yesterday amended the phrase "principal tenant" to "occupier."

Magistrate—Mr. Fraser agreed to change it to suit the view of my learned brother magistrate. I hold the view that the word "principal tenant" is just a description.

FRIENDS TO THE RESCUE

OFFER TO ASSIST CONVICTED THIEF

MR. SCHOFIELD'S GESTURE

After passing sentence of six weeks hard labour on Mak Lam, charged this morning with the larceny of 49 pounds of brass from the Royal Naval Yard, Mr. Schofield gave the prisoner the alternative of a fine of $75. This was the result of a plea by Mr. Horace Lo on behalf of the defendant.

Mr. Lo said that the man's friends had volunteered to contribute towards a fine, and asked that he be given the alternative, as a period in jail would seriously affect his career.

Tendering a plea of guilty on behalf of the prisoner, Mr. Lo said that the defendant had been in the Dockyard for the last eight or nine years, having joined when he was about 15 years of age. He had worked his way up, and now held the position of No. 2 store boy. Lately the defendant had got into financial difficulties, and owed the rent on his flat. He had a wife and four young children as well as a mother to support. He had borrowed the money to pay the rent from a friend, who had recently asked for the loan back as he was going to get married. The defendant had then fallen into the temptation of stealing from his employers. It was undoubtedly a wrong thing to do, but in view of the circumstances, he asked that a lenient view be taken of the prisoner's case.

Sub-Inspector Nolloth said that a detective was placed on duty outside the Royal Naval Yard yesterday. After 5 p.m. when the employees were leaving, the detective arrested defendant, who had already passed outside the gate, and searched him. The brass was found inside his girdle.

TRUST ABUSED.

Defendant was the No. 2 store boy, and because of his position was allowed to pass through the gate without being searched. He had obviously taken advantage of that position to steal the brass. If he was an ordinary employee he would have been searched. The Naval Yard had had several larcenies of late, especially from their electric workshop and from the stores, but the thefts could not be traced. It had always been thought that a casual labourer had been guilty of these offences.

Mr. Schofield suggested that in future the No. 1 and No. 2 workmen should also be subjected to search. In view of the trust that had been placed in the defendant, he was going to take a very serious view of the case, and would sentence defendant to six weeks hard labour.

After five minutes had elapsed, Mr. Lo came into Court again and made his plea.

Mr. Schofield allowed the previous sentence to stand, but imposed a fine of $75 as an alternative.

CONTEMPT OF COURT.

Arising out of this case, Chu Yan, a relative of defendant's was brought before Mr. Schofield for contempt of court.

Defendant had been seen wearing a hat in Court.

Mr. Lo apologised on behalf of defendant, saying that when defendant saw him preparing to leave Court, he had put on his hat unwittingly.

Mr. Schofield accepted the apology, and suggested that defendant might contribute some thing towards the Poor Box.

SLEIGHT OF HAND FAILS

MONEY TRICKSTER SENTENCED

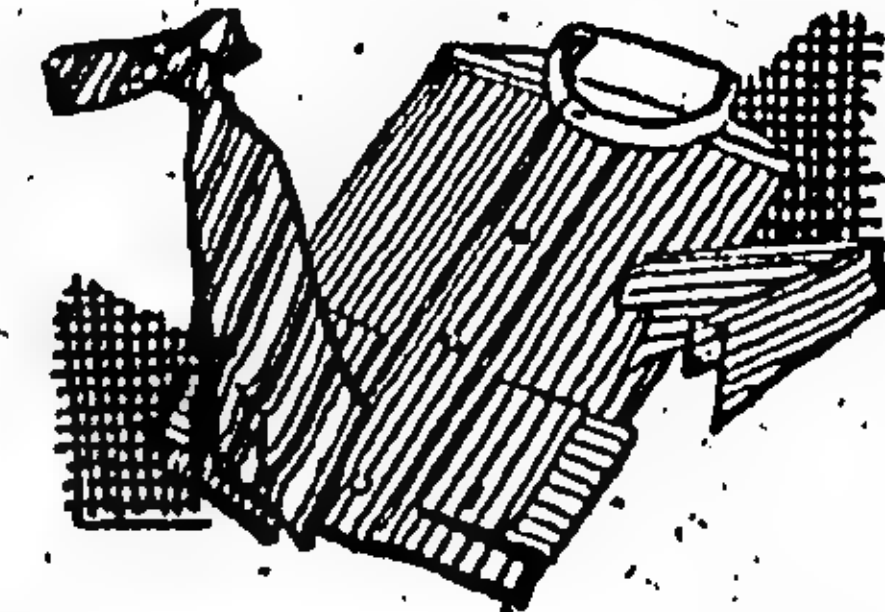

In Jardine's Bazaar yesterday, Cheung Sang purchased a tin of condensed milk for 64 cents, and tendered a $10 note. When given change, he declared that the price was four cents too much, and asked for his $10 back. He returned the change, including a roll of money.

After his departure the shopkeeper became suspicious and opened the roll to find a piece of lead. He gave chase, and defendant threw away the $5 in change. Only $2.80 was recovered, and Cheung was arrested.

Charged before Mr. Schofield, at the Central Magistracy this morning, by Sub-Inspector Nolloth, defendant was sentenced to six weeks hard labour. He was also ordered to pay $2.80 in costs.

LUZ PLAYS SPARKLING BOWLS

BEATS BRADBURY BY A HANDSOME MARGIN

TO ENTER CHAMPIONSHIP FINAL

WHIRLWIND FINISH OF SEVEN SHOTS ON TWO HEADS

RAOUL F. Luz, playing a beautifully controlled game yesterday entered the final of the Lawn Bowls open singles championship of the Colony, when he beat B. W. Bradbury of the Craigengower in the semi-final by 21 shots to eight.

The Club de Recreio representative was seen at his best and the large crowd which surrounded the green at the Kowloon Bowling Green Club, were delighted with a display of skilful bowls.

Luz took command of the match from the opening heads and although with his earlier woods Bradbury was drawing as accurately as his opponent, the Portuguese invariably managed to clinch the heads with a final shot wood.

He showed admirable control over his deliveries and found the green very early in the game. Bradbury, up against a player whose finishing touches were deadly in their accuracy, played doggedly, and succeeded in keeping within distance until the sixteenth head. The scores at that juncture were 14 to 7 in favour of Luz and Bradbury was still playing sound bowls though lacking the inspiration needed to break down such sustained accuracy as shown by Luz.

GREAT FINISH.

On the sixteenth head Luz placed the issue beyond doubt. He scored a three—the first of the match—and then conceded a single. Bradbury decided on a short head and this allowed Luz to finish the match in spectacular style.

Drawing beautifully with every wood, he recorded a four and the match was his.

Head	Luz	Bradbury
3	4	1
4	4	2
5	6	3
6	2	8
7	2	10
8	10	1
9	11	4
10	11	5
11	12	6
12	13	5
13	14	5
14	14	6
15	14	7
16	3	17
17	17	1
18	4	21

THE FINAL

TO BE PLAYED ON WEDNESDAY

Luz will now take part in his third final. He meets A. Hyde-Lay of the Kowloon Cricket Club. The match has been arranged to take place on Wednesday next at the Craigengower Cricket Club, starting at 4.45 sharp. Mr. J. Russell, President of the Lawn Bowls Association will umpire the game.

On the same green and at the same time B. W. Bradbury and A. E. Coates will meet for the third and fourth prizes.

Sunday next has been chosen for the final of the Spay Royal Cup, when, on the Civil Service Green at 3.30 Kowloon Dock will meet the Craigengower rink.

On Saturday the deciding match for the championship of the First Division of the bowls league will be played at the Club de Recreio, the opposing teams being the Kowloon Bowling Green Club and the Civil Service.

NEW TENNIS CHAMPIONS

LOTT & STOEFFEN WIN U.S. TITLE

MATCH OF 65 GAMES

Brookline, Aug. 30.

George M. Lott and L. R. Stoeffen are the new doubles champions of America.

To-day they won the National championship when they defeated Frank X. Shield and Frankie Parker in the final after an exhausting four sets with scores of 11-13, 9-7, 9-7, 6-3.

No less than 55 games were played and it was one of the most bitterly contested matches in the history of American tennis.

Shield and Parker offered a stubborn resistance in the first three sets. This lengthy period provided a lot of spectacular tennis with every point fiercely challenged. —Reuter.

germ-killing power of IZAL times as great as Lysol

Important experiments conducted by the British ROYAL INSTITUTE OF PUBLIC HEALTH
published in the British

"JOURNAL OF STATE MEDICINE" show the really serious dangers of using disinfectants which practical use fail to destroy germs. While advances have been made since the old days of the Plague and the cry of

"BRING OUT YOUR DEAD"

there is unfortunately no reason to doubt that much avoidable illness and many premature deaths are still due to the failure of antiseptics and so-called disinfectants to kill the germs of disease.

Wherever there is risk or real Danger of infection IZAL should be used.

Izal has been supplied in thousands of gallons for more than 25 years to Government Medical Departments, Hospitals and Public Health Authorities throughout the World. They buy Izal because they have tested it first. All Izal is guaranteed to be the same as is supplied to these Authorities.

TRADE WITH BRITAIN SHOWS DECLINE

Dublin, Aug. 30.

first seven months in 1933, has declined by over £8,600,000 as compared with 1932, and trade with Northern Ireland has dropped by £1,500,000.
Trade over the period with other countries has increased to the extent of £2,200,000.

DOUBLE HEADER DIVIDED

New York, Aug. 30.
A national League programme held the attention of baseball fans to-day, there being no American League schedule.

Brooklyn and Chicago broke even in a double header, the New York Giants nosed out St. Louis, Boston did likewise to Cincinnati and Pittsburgh won easily against Philadelphia.

Reuter's cabled results were:

NATIONAL LEAGUE.

work for them to do in every part of the globe; the demands of progress and civilisation embrace every profession and trade. The Diplomatic Service would be all the richer for the inclusion of these young men. The bridges and viaducts that are yet to be built where Nature holds in check the native mind await the descendants of those who carried into the wilderness from Clyde and Tyne the ring of hammer on rivet.
There are plantations in Malay and Ceylon and Sumatra where the British touch might make all the difference between progress and stalemata.

The Youth of Britain deserves its place in the sun. That place should not be obscured by the shadow of political philanderers to whom Tradition is only legendary, and a legend a bed-time story.

There is neither snobbery nor selfishness in the appeal of the class that has made incalculable sacrifices since the War to uphold the dignity and traditions of the Empire—the appeal that Authority shall have some regard for these young sacrifices. The incidence of taxation hasn't made school fees less of a problem—and it wasn't all vanity on the part of the parents when they strove mentally to equip their sons with a worthy education. May it not be said of them that they contributed not only to the bettering of these hard times, but to the strengthening of the fabric that shall be the Empire of the future?

Regain for Youth our prestige abroad. It can be done by the exercising of a little consideration and foresight and the activity of a Department here and there.
Above all, it might be remembered that, if those early pioneers had gone forth without the moral driving force of their country behind them, it is probable that there would have been no Empire to-day. Don't let these young men go out as emigrants unskilled: try to think of them as ambassadors of trade who may conceivably lift their fellows towards the heights.

The Fourth of August, 1914.
We were mighty then in spirit.
Who shall say that we cannot recapture the glory that was ours?
Who shall say that this youth, magnificent in his virility and courage, will not set the British Flag once more on the highest peak?

WORLD CRISIS A WAY OUT

By FREDERICK COPE, A.M.I.E.E.

Mr. Cope's striking articles on the world economic crisis which were recently published in the Hongkong Telegraph are now available in pamphlet form.

One of the features, repaying study, is the close similarity between the plan of reform suggested by this local writer, and certain aspects of the Roosevelt recovery programme. The author's ideas are naturally far too advanced for active promotion at the present time, but they are particularly interesting in view of the fact that President Roosevelt, in striking out on a path of his own, has travelled in the same direction.

The pamphlet is one of forty-four pages and can be obtained from the South China Morning Post at a cost of—

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

YESTERDAY'S MARKET IRREGULAR

According to Messrs. Swan, Culbertson and Fritts, the New York market was irregular yesterday. Business done 2,170,000 shares. The Wall Street Journal report on yesterday's market: The market closed irregular after swinging within a wide area. Heavy profit-taking developed in goldmining shares which spread boardwide due to disappointing response to gold ruling and even repeal issues weakened despite the result of the elections in the State of Washington. Call money was easier due to Federal Reserve Banks buying Government Securities and pumping credit into banks forcing rates down. The Stock Exchange voted for extended delivery time to two days effective as of Sept. 5. "Ironage Magazine" reports steel production at 47% of capacity which is partly attributable to prior purchases for stocking purposes and also uncertainties of national readjustment to the National Recovery Act. There is nothing to suggest a change of trend outside of a seasonal upturn in automobile production. Our New York Office cable (this morning) Stocks: A professional market which moved within yesterday's limits with oils acting well. Wheat: The market recovered sharply on culmination of September liquidation and on oversold conditions. News continues bullish. Buying power is better and purchases are suggested on the constructive side. Cotton: The market shows partial response to action of other market but possesses no initiative of its own. Apparently a new incentive is necessary and with inflation talk again aiding a small trading market is quite probable with lower tendency. Silver: The market was weaker during the day in sympathy with other commodities but was higher before the close. Dow-Jones averages:

SERIOUS WHITE ANT RAVAGES IN ST. JOHN'S CATHEDRAL

REPAIRS LIKELY TO COST $5,000

TIMBERS IN THE ROOF OF ST. JOHN'S CATHEDRAL HAVE BEEN DANGEROUSLY DAMAGED BY THE RAVAGES OF WHITE ANTS, REVEALS A HIGHLY INTERESTING REPORT BY THE ARCHITECT WHO IS NOW ENGAGED IN AN INTENSIVE CAMPAIGN AGAINST THE PESTS.

The extensive repairs and renewals which are absolutely essential will cost the Trustees at least five thousand dollars. It is pointed out that unless generous and immediate support is forthcoming, the Cathedral will be in a very serious position. A public appeal for funds has, therefore, been launched to-day.

COMPOUND NOW A BATTLEGROUND

During the heavy rains of July a number of leaks appeared in the roof of the Cathedral, and architects tracing these leaks found that the beams and rafters had been dangerously weakened by the ravages of white ants.

A complete survey of all wood-work and the erection of scaffolding was immediately commenced, and has just been completed.

As a result of the examination it has been proved that heavy

On close investigation this was found to be a white ant track—a little tunnel formed of the material upon which the ant is working, black in black soil, light red-brown in lime mortar, in this case a darker brown being composed of little particles of chewed up hard wood. A hasty search was immediately made and further tracks could be discerned on the roof timbers over the chancel and the North Transept.

TILE MOVEMENT.

The inspection of the roof from the outside showed normal conditions except that in one place the roll tiles or the circular high ridges had definitely slid a fraction of an inch over the pan tiles or concave ones. This indicated some form of settlement underneath and was the first definite reason for a closer inspection.

For this purpose a bamboo tower was constructed and pulled up into position under the affected parts. From this the suspected timbers could be tested, and it was found that some of the brackets and pulleys were dangerously damaged, so without more ado permission was obtained to inspect the whole of the roof.

DANGEROUSLY DAMAGED.

The cobweb like bamboo structure that now covers the internal roof is of course to permit access to every piece of timber in the Cathedral. Directly under the position of the shear or slide in the tiles, was found a badly damaged batten. These battens would at home be called common rafters, but as they in this case directly support the tiles they are literally life battens.

The inspection showed that three principal trusses would have to have major repairs, many of the brackets supporting the ends of the tie beams, over a dozen pulleys or horizontal beams directly supporting the battens, and more than 30 battens, were sufficiently damaged to need renewing. In many places the ants have passed right over one piece of wood to attack another more succulent piece.

ANTS' ALARM SIGNALS.

On two distinct occasions, on being disturbed, a definite alarm signal was heard, the sound of hundreds of mandibles being clamped together, somewhat similar to the noise of a cinema only very plaintive.

A type of honey comb or sponge like structure was found in two or three places which might be interpreted as nest houses or colonies that had connections with their headquarters but were self-supporting. An interesting theory is that they are store houses for food which is taken from here to supply the young, the soldier ants and the queen, none of which is able to forage for itself.

TRACKING THEM DOWN.

No nest was found in the Cathedral roof and so attention was turned to the Compound. Three trees were found to have live white ants in them. The method to discover if any of these connected to the Cathedral was to dig a transverse trench between the trees. This trench was then left for a day. The next day, in the

A view of the interior of St. John's Cathedral showing workmen preparing to change an ant-eaten beam.

In the cutting, either covering up the apertures or attempting to establish contact again. As the insects are the enemy or rather the food of all other ants and birds, also as they cannot live long in the sunlight, they have to construct their tunnels in self-protection.

In one place at the entrance of a tunnel about nine inches below the ground level, and on the near side towards the tree were four or five soldier ants, all facing outwards.

The blind creatures, for no wingless white ants can see, are moved only over their mandibles and antennae in the air to prevent any marauders or enemies from approaching.

SOMETHING PRECIOUS.

This was an indication that there was something precious to guard, consequently the first attack was to follow up this channel and the trench led to the foot of the tree. Here right amongst the roots the nest was found. It was left open and the little mud bulwarks erected by them daily were daily cleared away in the hope that the difference in temperature and exposure would exterminate them. After which the nest was flooded with termitic poison. The Queen Ant was not discovered.

The other tracks from the original trench were found to lead to curious pale green balls about five inches across, the colouring was mould which had developed after the disturbance and consequent similar structures found on the initial disturbance of a nest were of a clean brown colour. The substance of these is like thick crumbly paper and honey-combed just like a sponge. They contain the young which are very white and almost translucent. A veritable nursery.

ANOTHER CLUE.

For a week following this, practically no fresh signs were seen. This was worrying for it was known that other nests existed. Then one morning a new run several yards long was found in the garden immediately outside the Choir vestry, and on the other side of the path new tracks still being built were seen on a young tree. The same procedure of trench digging here exposed a very deep hole more than an inch in diameter, running almost vertically downwards.

As the "Fah-wong" had given information that an old tree now demolished had been very close to here, the hole was probably an eaten out root. The hole was flooded with white ant poison and left for the time being.

IN WATER CHANNEL.

The knowledge of the necessity of moisture for the ants and the general inferred direction made the excavation of a short run of cracked surface water channel inevitable. Here again the speed and size of new tracks built in one night after a cutting had been made showed the importance of this track, further soldier ants were seen here and this line is now being followed up.

It is fairly conclusive that the ants in the Cathedral roof have their headquarters in the garden. To many people the maggot-like number coloured ants that swarm about June are the normal and only type of termite. The wings of these creatures drop off within an hour of leaving the nest and they are then left defenceless to crawl away to some dark corner. Their future is not being dealt with here.

MYSTERY CREATURE.

Several different types of white ants are to be found in one nest, while each nest seems to develop peculiarities of its own and have strong variations. The "workers" found in the ground around the Cathedral are generally a light brown in front, dark brown in the middle and grey for the last third. The "soldiers" are a dark brown, and the "queens" are a very dark brown.

CHARHAR TROUBLES.

GENERAL SUNG MOVES AGAINST "REBEL"

Peking, Aug. 30. Chiang Po-cheng returned from Kalgan at noon to-day.

Interviewed, he said General Fang Chen-wu had agreed to give up his command without waiting for the Government to appoint a successor, but General Chi Hung-chang is still recalcitrant, being under the influence of his Communist followers.

General Sung Cheh-yuan, who returned to Kalgan yesterday after an inspection tour of North China, has already sent troops to round up the remnants of General Chi Hung-chang's forces. General Chi is trying to escape into Shansi and Sulyuan.

Chiang Po-cheng said that no great difficulty was anticipated in rounding up General Chi's men, as the Shansi and Sulyuan authorities had also sent troops to cut off their retreat.—Reuter.

FENG TEMPTED.

May Attend Fifth Kuomintang Parley.

Nanking, Aug. 30. The possibility of General Feng Yu-hsiang coming to Nanking to attend the Fifth Kuomintang National Congress on November 12, is indicated by Chen Kung-po, Minister of Industries, who arrived from Peking this morning. Mr. Chen broke his journey at Tainan to visit General Feng, but explained to-day that he did so in a private capacity and did not discuss political matters with the Christian General.—Reuter.

NAZI OUTRAGE

RAID PRISON TO FREE LEADER

Munich, Aug. 30. The whole of the Tyrol is in a state of high consternation over a prison-breaking episode at Innsbruck penitentiary in which a band of Nazis allegedly participated.

At dawn to-day a party of Nazis, disguised as members of the Austrian Heimwehr, drove up to the gates of the prison and were allowed to enter on a false pretext.

They at once set about the work of liberating the Nazi leader, Hofer, and decamped after knocking senseless the guards who attempted to intervene.

They drove away at a break-neck speed, and vanished into the mountain passes. The car was fired on by police and was finally abandoned. Bloodstains were discovered in the vehicle, showing that one or more of the occupants had been wounded.

The fugitives evidently proceeded towards Italy afoot, carrying their wounded.

Seventy Tyrolean Nazis have been arrested as hostages.—Reuter.

The soldiers are twice as long and more robustly built altogether, their armoured plated head and mandibles being half their length. One positively snow white ant 3/4 of an inch long was found, whose function cannot yet be ascertained.

THE BATTLEGROUND.

The compound is getting the appearance of a battleground, the blumy instruments of man and his poison are piled against the mining engine, whose speed of construction is comparatively colossal. White poloidal creation of new workers runs into thousands, and who work and sleep in the dark and at times give no indication of their presence until the material upon

GILMAN CASE TO BE REVIVED

LOCAL LAW ON TRANSFERS

A successful application for leave to appeal against the decision of the Pains Judge in the recent claim against Messrs. Gilman & Co., Ltd., was made by Mr. F. C. Jenkin, instructed by Mr. J. B. Prentiss, of Messrs. Hastings & Co., this morning.

The Chief Justice, Mr. J. R. Wood, and the Pains Judge, Mr. R. E. Lindell, sitting as a Full Court of Appeal heard the application.

Luk Hip-kee, the claimant, was awarded judgment for the full amount of $900 which he deposited with the Sun Taxi Cab Company whose affairs were later taken over by defendants, Messrs. Gilman's. He denied that there was any transfer of the business within the meaning of the Ordinance under which the claim was made.

IMPORTANT MATTER.

Mr. Jenkin said:—This case involves a very important matter from a commercial point of view and if leave to appeal is given everything will turn on the question of whether or not defendants can be made liable under the Fraudulent Transfer of Business Ordinance. If they are not within that Ordinance then there can be no question at all of their non-liability.

Before I refer to the judgment of the learned Judge, I would refer Your Lordships to the Ordinance.

It will be within your recollection now, having seen it, that if a person as a transferee of a business or any portion of a business, has not given the requisite notice in the Government Gazette, he is liable for all the liabilities of the transferor.

If the judgment stands it will mean, on an examination of the facts, that a person who under a Hire Purchase Agreement lets out goods and re-takes them under the Agreement, may be held liable as a transferee for all the liabilities of the person who, under the Agreement, is the hirer.

I am prepared to accept most loyally the facts set out in the judgment.

HIRE PURCHASE.

Messrs. Gilman & Co. let out a dozen motor cars under a Hire Purchase Agreement to the Sun Taxi Cab Company. Under that Agreement the cars remained the absolute property of Messrs. Gilman's and they would resume possession if the hirers fell into arrears. They did fall into arrears, and accordingly Messrs. Gilman's put an end to the Agreement. A meeting took place between representatives of the companies on January 24 and it was then decided that the best way of meeting the position would be for Messrs. Gilman's to sell the cars and, out of the proceeds, pay not only what was owing to them but also the creditors of the Cab Company and then to hand over the balance to members of the latter firm.

On the face of it this does not look like a fraudulent transfer and it was evidently not held to be such.

RUNNING OF CARS.

It followed that pending the sale of the cars the defendants should carry on the running of the cars and for this purpose it was arranged that the licences should be transferred to Messrs. Gilman's and the privilege of occupying stands in certain streets by permission of the police department should be transferred to Messrs. Gilman's.

CREDITORS PAID.

At the date of judgment the cars had not been sold but Messrs. Gilman had paid off some of the creditors during their period of running the cars. That is very important to the question of whether there was fraud or not. That was all that took place on that date.

The question had been raised as to whether or not it was a transfer within the meaning of the Ordinance. It was argued before the Pains Judge who held—though he confessed that he held it with some doubt—that there was a transfer. I think you will agree with me that if the Pains Judge still holds the doubt he held then, it is still arguable.

LICENCES OF NO USE.

Clearly the licences were of no use to the defendants.

WAR ON FORD.

MOTOR MAGNATE OPPOSES CODE.

Washington, Aug. 30. A gigantic "Buy Now" campaign in the latest phase of the American recovery plan which, in some quarters, is believed to require supplementary measures, including inflation unless the present supreme efforts work a miracle.

General Johnson's new proposals include one pledging customers to buy $2,000,000,000 worth of goods.

General Johnson's estimate that 2,000,000 more men have been re-employed since the inauguration of the administration's recovery drive, is below the general expectation, although it is stated that this number adds $330,000,000 to the nation's weekly pay roll. Two or three months must elapse before the full benefit of the re-employment of these workers will be felt.

General Johnson, meanwhile, is at war with the mighty motor magnate, Henry Ford. Johnson has threatened to withhold the coveted "Blue Eagle" from Ford if the latter persists in his refusal to sign the suggested wage and working hour code. But more serious is the threat to commence a popular boycott against Ford's products. The Ford plants' working hours are slightly longer and the pay slightly higher than the suggested code for the motor industry.—Reuter.

President's Interest.

New York, Aug. 30. President Roosevelt, has requested General Johnson to report on the failure of Henry Ford to enrol under the motor code.—Reuter.

ROCKEFELLER ESTATE.

New York, Aug. 30. Mr. John D. Rockefeller's 8,000-acre estate in Pocantico Hills, where 290 men, exclusive of domestic staff, are employed, is now worked to a code.

The employees are receiving the same pay for a 40-hour week as they previously did for a 50-hour week, while 25 new men have been given employment.—Reuter.

SUCCEEDS MOLEY.

New York, Aug. 30. Mr. Sumner Welles, formerly Ambassador to Cuba, has been named to succeed Professor Raymond Moley as Assistant Secretary of State in President Roosevelt's Government.—Reuter.

CRUELTY TO CHICKENS

THEY CROWDED THEMSELVES SAYS OLD WOMAN

A bald-headed Chinese widow, aged 65 years, stood in the dock of the Central Police Court this morning, charged with cruelty to chickens. It was stated that seventeen chickens were placed in a small basket.

The woman—They were not crowded. They crowded themselves.

Mr. Wynne-Jones imposed a fine of $5.

THEY CROWDED THEMSELVES SAYS OLD WOMAN

The cabs and these latter were the property. They could not be assets. The permit to occupy a portion of a public street was of no use to them without the cars and could only be obtained by permission of the police and Messrs. Gilman's. It is impossible to hold that this was a transfer of a portion of a trade or occupation.

A point which interests me much more than that one is the point as to whether or not this is the transfer of a business which comes within the Ordinance.

DEFENDANTS CLEARED.

I argue that it cannot for this reason. The learned Judge has himself cleared the defendants of any suggestion that this arrangement of January 24 was attended by any fraud of any kind or description.

Chief Justice: The words "intended to defraud" do not appear in the Ordinance.

Mr. Jenkin said he would quote authorities to show that this was the meaning of the Ordinance.

Continuing Mr. Jenkin said: The title of the Ordinance was not explicit and was at least open to doubt.

POMPEY'S FORM

GREAT WIN AT SUNDERLAND

LATEST HOME FOOTBALL

London, Aug. 30. A programme of twenty matches was played in the English football league to-day, teams in all four divisions being engaged.

There were naturally some unexpected results. The best performance in the First Division was that of Portsmouth who journeyed to Sunderland and took away both points. This was Pompey's second away match of the season and they have garnered three points from the engagements.

Stoke, one of the promoted teams continued to show excellent form. They followed up their home victory against Chelsea last Saturday with a division of spoils on the Liverpool ground to-day, each team scoring once.

WEST HAM FOUR.

Hull, who lost on their own ground last week gave a complete reversal of form by visiting Bradford City and winning. West Ham, who rattled up four goals against Bolton on Saturday went to Plymouth and helped themselves to another four. Plymouth, however, were just as effective in front of goal and a drawn game resulted.

Chesterfield are making an impression. On Saturday they won their opening match by scoring six goals and to-day they went to Wrexham and pierced the net three times to win by the odd goal in five.

The results as cabled by Reuter were:

FIRST DIVISION.

Birmingham	0	Manchester C.	1
Derby	1	Everton	1
Liverpool	1	Stoke	1
Sunderland	0	Portsmouth	2

thought," he said. "That's all right. I want you always to feel free to speak out. That way I'll know what's in your mind."

"Well, I thought being a superintendent meant an office and a polished desk where you sat giving orders. And sometimes when I come home and you are dressed like that—"

"Listen, Eve, I could get awfully mad at you if I didn't realize what makes you talk like that. Now, get this straight! There are still a great many things you have to learn about what makes this world go around. One of them is that the way things look doesn't alter the truth any. Another is that a man usually knows what his job requires. Rough clothes are not necessarily dirty clothes. There are days on the job when I dress up, but I'd look like a damned fool if I wore spats and carried a walking stick when my men are erecting steel."

"You wouldn't look like a fool to me. I think if you stood far enough off from the mess, you wouldn't get splattered with plaster and things."

Dick gave a snort of anger. Eve was persistent. "Couldn't you manage that way?" she wheeled.

Dick heaved a sigh and answered with finality. "We had a tough time to-day and if you had seen one-half of it, I believe you'd think a pair of boots and an old suit very sensible to wear."

Eve was accustomed to having her own way. Apparently now that she was married she would have to make some concessions she had not heretofore considered possible. The idea was disturbing and she crept into bed shivering with cold and anger.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By W. E. McKenney

I have recently written to a number of the country's leading contract players asking them for an interesting hand, so I want to give you to-day the hand which was sent to me by Mr. Robert W. Halpin of Chicago, a past-president of the American Bridge League.

Mr. Halpin was captain of the team which represented the Auction Bridge Club of Chicago, which club presented the trophy for national open contract teams-of-four. Mr. Halpin and his teammates proceeded to win this trophy the first year it was put into play—1929. Mr. Halpin says that the mistake made by a great many contract players is in not providing for a bad trump distribution. In the following hand the careless declarer would try to make the hand by simply setting up the club suit by ruffing one club—and then would complain because of a bad break.

The Bidding

South bid one club, West passed and North made a one over one force of one spade. East passed and South went to two clubs. North then bid two diamonds, South bid two hearts, and North jumped to six hearts.

The Play

West's opening lead was the ten of diamonds, the queen was played from dummy and when East played the ace, South was forced to ruff with the seven of hearts.

Mr. Halpin, figuring that he might get a bad split in trump, now led the three of spades and took the finesse, East winning with the king. East returned the seven of spades which Mr. Halpin won in dummy with the ace.

He then led the four of diamonds from dummy and trumped with the eight of hearts. He cashed his ace and jack of hearts and then led a small club, winning in dummy with the king.

The king and queen of hearts were played from dummy, Mr. Halpin discarding two clubs from his own hand. He led the king of diamonds and discarded his other losing club.

He returned to his own hand by leading a spade and winning with the jack, and then played his ace and queen of clubs for the last two tricks, successfully making his small slam contract.

SOLICITOR'S FIRST CASE

MR. C. E. LOWE IN LOCAL COURT

Mr. C. E. Lowe, of Messrs. Dennis & Co., who was admitted to practice in the Colony in the Supreme Court yesterday, appeared in his first local case before Mr. Wynne-Jones in the Central Police Court this morning.

Mr. Lowe defended Lee Chek, 28, caterer of the S.S. Cheong On, who was charged in connection with unmanifested cargo, consisting of 2,500 Canton twenty cent pieces, aboard the ship. He asked for a remand until tomorrow.

R. O. Grimmit said the case for the prosecution was very simple. The case was remanded for 24 hours.

EVADING DUTY ON WINE

YOUTH'S ATTEMPT TO DESTROY EVIDENCE

Stopped by a searcher at the Wing Lok Street wharf, a Chinese youth, found to be carrying three bottles of wine, threw down two of the bottles which smashed. Only one was retrieved.

The youth appeared in the dock of the Central Police Court this morning before Mr. Wynne-Jones charged with evading duty on the wine, and attempting to destroy evidence.

On the first charge, defendant was fined $10 or two weeks, and a consecutive fine of $25 or three weeks was inflicted on the second count.

"I AM STEALING— GO AWAY"

THIEF'S CALM REQUEST TO WATCHMAN

"The defendant when asked by the district watchman what he was doing, replied that he was stealing and asked the watchman to go away," said Sub-Inspector Nolloth this morning when charging Tang Lam with the larceny of two suit cases, the property of Li Kwong-cheung and Ma Yiu-chuen, from No. 52, Johnstone Road.

Defendant was sentenced to six months hard labour.

Sub-Inspector Nolloth said the man climbed up a drain pipe, and entering through an open window stole the suitcases, containing clothes, valued at $17.40. The watchman saw defendant on the roof, and arrested him.

Defendant denied a previous conviction for larceny, but his finger prints were produced, and the conviction verified.

Mr. Schofield remarked that he looked a professional burglar.

ANOTHER REMAND

POLICE COURT SEQUEL TO ROBBERY

Lau Hung-yuet, shop foki, and Wu Shu-ming, unemployed, made another formal appearance before Mr. Wynne-Jones in the Central Police Court this morning charged in connection with the robbery of $3,700 in money and quantity of jewellery from 275, Des Voeux Road Central, on July 17.

On the application of Det-Insp. M. Murphy, the accused were BREAD STOLEN FROM R.A.S.C.

CHINESE BAKER
FINED $25

Fung Yiu, a young baker, was charged before Mr. Wynne-Jones in the Central Court this morning, with stealing five loaves of bread, the property of the Royal Army Service Corps. Defendant pleaded guilty and was fined $25 or three weeks.

Sub-Insp. Smith said the defendant was arrested in Connaught Road carrying a basket which contained the bread. Accused stated that the bread was surplus supply and it was the practice of the R.A.S.C. to distribute it to the coolies.

Captain B. S. D. Faithfull, R.A.S.C., said that occasionally bread was given to the bakers but in very small quantities, probably half a loaf, but never in such a large quantity as defendant had stolen. The bread was given to them on the strict understanding that they did not take it out of the gates of the compound. Defendant had been working for 18 months and had quite a good record.

Capt. Faithfull added that there had been a previous case, but he had overlooked it. This being the second case, he had decided to prosecute.

formally remanded for a week, when it is expected a date will be fixed for the hearing of the case.

The case is a sequel to one of the most daring raids within City limits for some considerable time past. The robbers resorted to a terrible threat when, pouring kerosene oil over their victims, they threatened to set them alight.
